PLANS FOR RALLY ARE COMPLETED

Big Political Demonstration Saturday Night Will Close Republican Campaign in County.

COMMITTEES START WORKING

Parade Promises to be Largest Ever Held Here—Meeting For Tonight Called Off.

FIRST VOTERS TO MEET

The Republican first voters of Rush county will hold a meeting Friday night at 7:30 o'clock in the court house to complete arrangements for their part in the big parade Saturday night. The first voters will form one section of the parade and will be one of the features. All first voters are requested to attend the meeting.

Plans for the big Republican rally Saturday night took definite form last night at a meeting held at headquarters. Committees were appointed and work was started this morning in an effort to make the rally the biggest political demonstration ever held in Rushville.

The meeting proposed for tonight was called off when it was decided to bend all efforts towards the Saturday night speaking, when James E. Watson will deliver an address in the tabernacle. The rally will close the Republican campaign in this city. One of the big features will be the torch light parade. The committees appointed last night will have charge of the parade.

It will undoubtedly be the largest ever held here. Every Republican in the county is to consider himself a committee of one and is to take part in the parade. If you are not on a committee don't think you are not wanted but join in the procession. The same applies to automobile owners. Every Republican automobile owner in the county will be invited to take part and asked to decorate their machines. The decorations however are no bar from taking part in the parade. The formation and line of march will be announced later.

The advertising committee was on the job early this morning and the surrounding cities were visited. Shelbyville promises to send a delegation of 500 and a special train will likely be run from Newcastle. The crowd is expected to equal any that was ever in the city. The following committees were appointed at the meeting last night:

- Marshals of Parade.
Frank Redman, chairman; W. A. Alexander, Col. E. H. Wolfe, John C. Blackledge, William Bainbridge.
- Committee on Arrangements.
Dr. F. M. Sparks, chairman; A. L. Riggs, Merrill Ball, Frank Capp.
- Committee on Music.
Ab. Denning, chairman; Link Guffin.
- Committee on Decorations.
Will Bliss, chairman; A. W. Posey, George Helm, Walter Hubbard, Ed. Crosby, Allen Daniels, George F. Moore, A. L. Gary, Grant Gregg, George Weeks, Roy Abercrombie, J. Vincent Young.
- Committee on Invitations.
Clata Bebout chairman.

BEVERIDGE IS SLOW ON REFORM

Ralston Says He Could Get Into Democratic Party With 10 Years More Work.

AIMS OF GEORGE W. PERKINS

Democratic Nominee Devotes Latter Part of Speech to Assailing Bull Moose Candidate.

In the latter part of his speech at the tabernacle yesterday afternoon Samuel M. Ralston of Lebanon, the Democratic nominee for governor, paid some attention to the statements and assertions of Albert J. Beveridge, Bull Moose candidate for the governorship. The whole last part of his address was devoted to Mr. Beveridge and a brief eulogy of the Democratic State and national tickets.

Mr. Ralston ridiculed the Bull Moose plan of Beveridge's to furnish free school books to the school children of Indiana. He said that the books would have to be paid for by some means, and that the people in the end would have to defray the expenses by paying an extra tax.

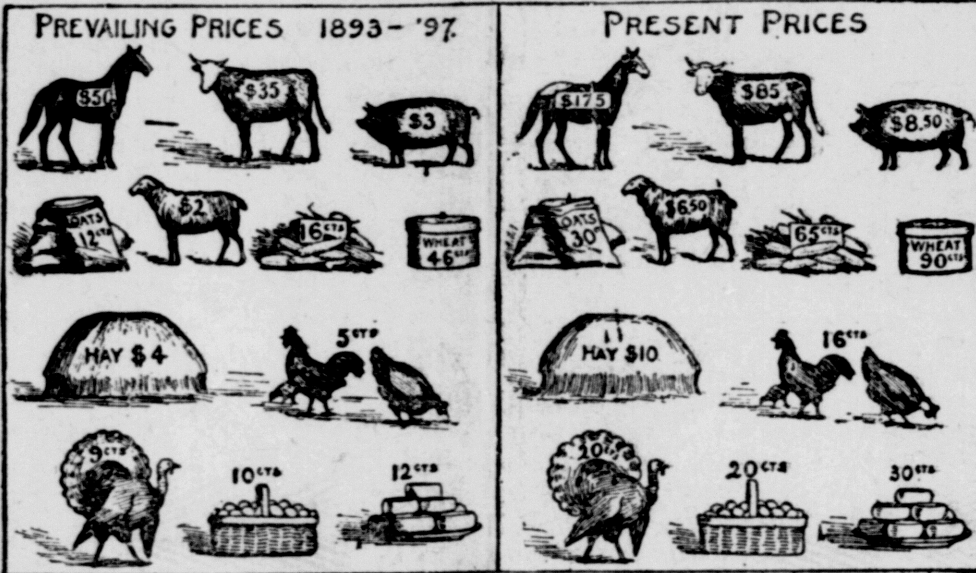

Mr. Ralston presented an argument against the Bull Moose plan of class legislation for paying road taxes. He declared that he did not understand why a farmer, who is intelligent and interested in road building because it helps to better his condition, could not work out his road tax as well if not better than a paid foreigner.

"If I had ten years more with Albert J. Beveridge," continued the Democratic nominee, "I could make him such a reformer that would entitle him to admission in the Democratic party. From the headway that I have made with him thus far I should imagine that it would require about eight years more."

"Beveridge has said many unkind things about me. I have never had anything but the kindest feelings and words for him. He says that I am a boss-made candidate, that I am the result of a machine that nominated me. He don't know me I see that. Do I look the part?"

"He says that I am a representative."

LOCAL WOMEN AT ANNUAL MEETING

Attending Woman's Synodical Societies of Home and Foreign Missions in Greensburg.

ENDS TOMORROW AFTERNOON

The thirtieth annual meeting of the Woman's Synodical Societies of the Home and Foreign Missions of Indiana is being held at the First Presbyterian church in Greensburg, starting yesterday afternoon and lasting till Thursday afternoon, and a number of the members of the First Presbyterian church of this city are attending the sessions.

The delegates from this church are Mrs. R. A. Petry and Mrs. Jeanetta Carr. Mrs. B. O. Simpson, Mrs. Frank Reynolds and Mrs. John Boyd attended today's session.

Some very prominent women of the denomination will appear on the program, among them being the following: Mrs. John Balcom Shaw, of Chicago, president of the board of the northwest; Mrs. A. L. Berry of Chicago; Mrs. W. P. Chalfant, Wehsien, N. China; Miss Eva T. McCord, Chicago; Mrs. D. E. Pottre, New York; Mrs. A. K. Reishaer, Tokio, Japan. In addition to the addresses to be made by these noted women there will be talks and reports from women prominent in the Presbyterian work in Indiana.

The meeting is similar to the one held in Shelbyville recently by the men of the denomination.

BACK IN JAIL ONCE MORE

Police Capture Robert Harp After He Breaks Jail.

Robert Harp, who escaped from the Shelbyville jail Monday night, and who was thought to have come this way, was captured yesterday afternoon in Indianapolis. Harp was arrested a week ago for forgery. His brother who was also arrested and developments show that he is wanted at the Kentucky State prison for violating his parole. He was serving a ten years' sentence for killing a negro. Harp was followed to Indianapolis after he broke jail and his capture was an easy matter.

A SERIOUS QUESTION.

The serious question which you will have to decide in the voting booth on Tuesday, November 5, is whether you want a continuance of present prosperity or a return to the days of Democratic distress.

IT MAY BE CAUSE OF DIPHTHERIA

Burning of Leaves in Evening When Smoke Hangs to Earth Shouldn't be Practice.

AGAINST CITY ORDINANCE

Much unlawful burning of leaves in Rushville is being reported and much of it is believed to be due to an ignorance of the hours for burning leaves, which is specified in a city ordinance. The ordinance provides that it shall be unlawful for any person to burn leaves in the city of Rushville before 6 o'clock a. m. or after 2 o'clock p. m.

The ordinance is very plain in this respect and it can readily be seen that to burn leaves before 6 o'clock a. m. or after 2 o'clock p. m., is unlawful.

Many people are said to be burning leaves after 4 o'clock p. m. and this is not only an unlawful time, but a very dangerous time, besides, for the reason that the smoke does not ascend, but instead hangs low and finally steals in and about the homes. The leaves are now green and the smoke from them is especially dense and irritating to throats. The smoke is especially annoying to persons who are afflicted with asthma, and some physicians claim that smoke from burning leaves brings on diphtheria.

IS ABSORBING ROMANCE

"The Root of Evil," by Thomas Dixon, Begins Today.

A story with thrills, an absorbing romance of a southern family in New York, is "The Root of Evil," a serial by Thomas Dixon, which appears for the first time in today's issue on page six. The author of this new and romantic novel has also written "The Leopard's Spots," "The Clansman" and other books of equal fame. "The Root of Evil" is one you can not afford to miss. It is teeming with human interest, and the characters are all true to life.

FORMER COUNCILMAN DIES.

The funeral of Harper Sullivan, age seventy-five years, who died at his home near Knightstown Monday afternoon, were held this afternoon. He was formerly a member of the county council of Henry county. A widow and several children survive.

Because of scarlet fever the Social set for Thursday evening of this week at Glenwood has been called off.

TWO VACANCIES FILLED BY BOARD

Commissioners Name Inspectors and Complete List For General Election Next Tuesday.

TRUSTEE ALWAYS ACTS AS ONE

Law Requires Them to Report Vote Immediately After Conclusion of Count.

The county commissioners met yesterday and filled two vacancies in the list of inspectors for the coming election. They were appointed by the board early in September.

The county election commission wishes to emphasize upon the inspectors the fact that the returns from their precinct should be made as soon as possible after the final count. It is absolutely imperative that this be heeded by the inspectors.

Besides the election laws of Indiana make it mandatory for the inspectors. The law says in this regard: "The vote must be returned by the Inspector to the Clerk's office in the Court House immediately on the conclusion of the count."

There have been many rank violations of this section of the election. In one instance last year a precinct inspector went to bed after the vote was counted in his precinct, and did not get into Rushville until after eight o'clock in the morning. Thus the real vote in the county could not be ascertained until that time. There have been instances like this in practically every election.

The remainder of the election board, two judges, two clerks and two sheriffs, are appointed by the inspector. The inspector generally acts on the recommendation of the county chairmen of the two leading parties. The vacancies filled in the list of inspectors yesterday by the board of commissioners were in precinct No. 1 in Posey and in precinct No. 2 in Anderson. William Gowdy was appointed in the former and Wylie McKee in the latter. The trustee of the township acts as inspector in his precinct according to the law.

The following is the list of the inspectors in the county.

- Ripley, 1—Aaron O. Hill, 2—Rue P. Henley, 3—Jesse Henley.
Posey, 1—William Gowdy, 2—Nathan R. Harlow.
Walker, 1—Henry Halterman, 2—Jesse O. Shelton.
Orange, 1—Lloyd A. Wagner, 2—Charles Owen.
Anderson, 1—Thomas Bottorff, 2—Wylie McKee.
Rushville, 1—Carl Webb, 2—W. A. Allen, 3—Seneca Conner, 4—Martin Spivey, 5—George E. Muire, 6—Washington Allen, 7—William C. Fair, 8—R. H. Berry, 9—James V. Young, 10—George Helm.
Jackson, 1—Oliver M. Siler.
Center, 1—Harvey Atkins, 2—Chester Rhodes.
Washington, 1—O. A. J. Hall, 2—J. L. Hays.
Union, 1—Wm. R. Martin, 2—Sam McClure.
Noble, 1—George A. Looney, 2—Edgar Morris.
Richland, 1—James W. Anderson.

M'EWAN TELLS HIS LIFE STORY

Former Light Opera and Vaudeville Performer Recites Story of Real Human Interest.

CONVERTED ON RETURN HOME

His Solos and "Duet" With Himself Make Sacred Concert an Enjoyable Event.

William McEwan, choir leader at the Biederwolf evangelistic meetings at the tabernacle, former vaudeville and light opera performer, told the story of his conversion to a Christian life, even though he had been a confessing Christian from childhood, and entertained an audience of more than twenty-five hundred people at the tabernacle with his sweet tenor voice, and with numbers by the chorus choir, which has been under his direction during the revival.

McEwan's story of his life came as the climax of the pleasant evening's entertainment, and he saved it until the end. McEwan has a true Scotch dialect. His story was impressive and well taken.

McEwan was born of poor parentage in Scotland and reared in the strict Reformed Presbyterian church. His father earned six dollars a week to support his family. McEwan said he never knew what it was to sing a Gospel hymn in his boyhood days because the church to which he went always sang the Psalms.

In early life his parents discovered that he had a sweet voice and his father's ambition for him to succeed was so great that he contrived to arrange for him to study under one of Scotland's greatest music masters. He learned fast, became a concert singer and won instantaneous success.

He came to America when a young man, did a little concert work and returned to his native land where he found his sweetheart, as he put it. He was married and returned to America where he engaged in light opera and vaudeville work because it offered more lucrative wages.

McEwan said life "on the road" was hardly conducive to Christianity. He declared people on the stage got together each Sunday and sang "Where is My Wandering Boy Tonight?" and thought they were right with God until next Sunday. That's all the religion, he declared, that is to be found among stage folks.

While on the stage, the choirster said, he learned to drink. Although he was never a drunkard, he said, he had been under the influence of drink. His wife traveled with him continually and after their first child was born, Mrs. McEwan had a desire to return home. McEwan said he took her to New York and put her on a steamship. His desire was so great to return that he could not overcome it, and the next day he left on a boat sailing from Boston, arriving home a day after his wife.

His father then lived in Scotland, and on one Saturday night he was to appear in a show there, and all his old friends were to turn out to give him a reception. After the show, he said, they all went out for a time. He said he was under the influence of drink when he got home that night, and his father was very much put out about it. That night his father extracted a promise from him to attend church the next day.

He started, and met a crowd of

LOOKING ABOUT FOR PRECEDENT

What Would Happen In Case of Sherman's Death?

SITUATION IS COMPLICATED

With the Physicians Offering No Hope For the Recovery of the Vice President, the Necessity of Filling the Taft Ticket, in Case Death Should Occur Before the Election, Is Causing Politicians No End of Worry.

Washington, Oct. 30.—Either before or after election a very complicated situation would probably be created by the death of Vice President Sherman. It was suggested today by prominent party leaders that Mr. Sherman, in view of his critical illness and the fact that his doctors have pronounced him incurable, might authorize the withdrawal of his name as his party's candidate for vice president. In such a contingency the duty of filling the vacancy on the Republican ticket, under immemorial usage, would devolve on the Republican national committee. Just before adjourning, the Chicago convention, conforming to precedent, passed a formal resolution authorizing the national committee to fill any vacancy that might occur on the ticket or in their organization.

It was suggested that if a vacancy occurred before election, the committee might name Governor Hadley of Missouri, who was urged as President Taft's running mate at a time when it was understood Vice President Sherman would not be a candidate for re-election.

When the house of representatives canvassed the vote of the electors chosen on the Greeley-Brown ticket in 1872, Mr. Greeley having died after the election and before the ticket was canvassed, it was found that all but three of the electors had voted for candidates other than Greeley. Three from Georgia voted for Greeley. The three cast for Greeley were thrown out because the man for whom they were cast was not alive and they were held to be irregular.

In view of the Greeley precedent electoral votes cast after the vacancy had occurred could not be canvassed as cast, but it was suggested that if the vacancy occurred after the votes are cast and before the vote is canvassed, the problem could be solved by re-convening the electors in the several states and having them make another choice.

A more serious complication, however, would be created by Mr. Sherman's death after election day if the selection of a president were thrown into the house of representatives, as is entirely possible. The house is now evenly divided between Republicans and Democrats, and in case it should fail to elect a president the duty would devolve on the senate of selecting a vice president, who in turn would become president. Their choice, unlike that in the house, would be limited to the two candidates having the highest number of votes for office.

TO TEST STRENGTH

Colonel Roosevelt Feels Equal to Task of Speaking Tonight.

Oyster Bay, Oct. 30.—By way of preparing himself for the supreme effort tonight, which he and his physicians know will tax him to the utmost, Col. Roosevelt has been saving himself. No political visitors have been received. The colonel looks well and vigorous and his arm seems to be distinctly better. It fell into the old gestures with just a little noticeable stiffness.

A private car will bear Col. Roosevelt to the Pennsylvania terminal late this afternoon and special precautions have been made to protect him from the rush of the crowd both en route to Madison Square Garden and on his return to the station which will be made immediately after he has spoken. His doctors adhere to their determination that he shall return to Oyster Bay without delay.

ON THE GO

Governor Wilson Will Be Busy Until Election Day.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 30.—Governor Wilson made a speech this morning at 10 o'clock at Cape May courthouse. From there he motored to Wildwood, where he spoke at 2 o'clock. From Wildwood he will go by train to Burlington, where he will address a mass meeting in the evening. A late night trip to Princeton by automobile will complete today's itinerary.

Most of tomorrow will be spent by the governor in Princeton preparing for his speech at Madison Square Garden that night. Friday he will make his trip to Rochester, returning to New York to review the Wilson and Marshall parade Saturday afternoon.

The governor will wind up his campaign with a trip to Passaic county next Tuesday.

Sentenced For Life.

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 30.—Clint Beverly, colored, of Madisonville, Ky., was found guilty of murder in the first degree and sentenced to life imprisonment. One of the jurors voted for the death penalty. Beverly shot his wife as she was coming from a moving picture show with another man.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

A MISTAKEN POLICY.

(Fort Wayne News.)

The bull moose press, is making the most of the attack upon Colonel Roosevelt and apparently sees in the incident a political asset of material value. The Indianapolis Star in shrieking headlines gladsomely proclaims that the attempted murder will turn thousands of voters to the colonel, and on all sides there seems to be a disposition to regard the tragic affair as a heaven-sent boon. At the same time the occasion is seized upon as one suitable for the administration of an awful chastisement upon those papers and orators that during the campaign have seen fit to lampoon the colonel. The statement of the miserable Schrenk that he was inspired by the articles in the New York World, Dr. Wilson's personal organ, is seized upon with activity and we are told that such papers should promptly be suppressed. In a way this is all very well, yet at the same time it is well to preserve our mental poise and to remember that during this contest it has been a case of give and take. Colonel Roosevelt and his supporters have not suffered quietly under the exhortations that have been directed against them. Far from it. Rather have they set the pace and certainly no-one can honestly allege that they have been either temperate or reasonable in their assaults upon their opposition. They have led the fighting.

Some days ago the News, after

Governor Marshall had been struck in the face in with a stone, speculated upon just such an occurrence as that of Monday night and called serious attention to the extremes to which the orators had proceeded in their resort to personalities. It declared that in case one of the national candidates should be assassinated the country would speedily come to its senses and deeply regret a tragedy for which the radical partisanship of the whole people was fundamentally to blame. The narrow escape from a horror of that character has had in a great measure the effect desired, but it will not be a quiet of long continuance if the organs of Colonel Roosevelt persist in the crucifixion of the papers that have opposed him. The opportunity for retort is too magnificent.

PETITION FOR GUARDIAN.

Newcastle Courier: Mrs. Agnes Heaton of Knightstown has filed a petition asking that the court appoint a guardian for her husband, Robert S. Heaton. She charges that he is an habitual drunkard. It is stated in the petition that he has real estate valued at $35,000 and $4,000 in personal property.

ONWARD COXEY'S ARMY.

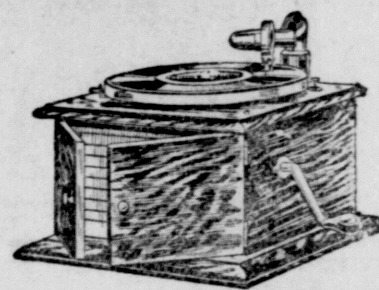

Muncie Press: It's better for even a bull mooser to sing "Onward Christian Soldier" in the midst of Republican prosperity than to have to cry "Onward Coxeys Army" next door to soup houses under such an administration as followed the failure of the people to stand by President Harrison in 1892.

MR. TAFT IN HOPEFUL MOOD FACING POLLS

President In High Spirits Following Conference.

New York, Oct. 30.—President Taft said to reporters who trooped in to see him at the end of a conference in which the president met Republican leaders representing New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Massachusetts at the Manhattan hotel last night:

"All I can say is that a number of distinguished gentlemen with whom I have conferred seem to be in accord as to the wisdom the American people would show if they re-elected me, and also as to the reasonable probability that they will do so."

The president seemed to be in high spirits as he said this. He had just been assured by State Chairman Barnes of New York, and Senator Murray Crane, of Massachusetts that he would carry these two states among others.

The conference was the only big Republican gathering of the sort that has taken place in New York in this campaign. To it had been invited all the Republican candidates of congress of this city as well as all the New York state leaders and a selected few from the three other states. It was held in the state room of the Manhattan, after a dinner at which were President Taft, his two brothers, Henry W. and Charles P. Taft, Chairman Charles D. Hilles, of the national committee; Major Thomas L. Rhoads, and Lieutenant John W. Timmons, the president's personal aides.

Informality marked the conference. The president standing near the center of the room hailed the visitors.

TAKEN FROM BRIDE

Young Dozier Sent to Jail on Complaint of Father.

Macon, Ga., Oct. 30.—Young Vogt Dozier, who yesterday married Essie Carter, who had been cruelly flogged by his father to break off the relations of the couple, was arrested a few hours later and taken to Dawson and lodged in jail. Young Dozier was arrested at the instance of his father.

The officers found Dozier in company with his bride and literally dragged him from her arms.

Young Dozier is charged by the Dawson authorities with several minor offenses. The elder Dozier says he will keep the boy in jail forever rather than let him live with his wife.

The Sign and the Leaven. Mark viii:11-26.

Golden Text—Jesus spake unto them, saying, I am the light of the world; he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life. John viii:12.

(1.) Verse 11—How do you account for the fact that religious differences generally stir much antagonism?

(2.) Why is it impossible to learn spiritual truth when in an antagonistic frame of mind?

(3.) What caused the Sadducees and Pharisees, who hated each other, to unite in their hatred of Jesus?

(4.) What was the nature of the "sign" they wanted?

(5.) Verses 12-13—What reason is there to believe that if Jesus had performed ever so wonderful a "sign" it would have made any difference in their attitude to him?

(6.) Why did their request for a sign make Jesus feel so sad? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

(7.) Was their opposition to Jesus honest or dishonest? Give your reasons.

(8.) Why did not the wonderful "signs" which Jesus had already performed satisfy them?

(9.) Which cause is the more influential in keeping men from Christ today, a lack of evidence of the truth of Christianity or the love of sin? Give your reasons.

(10.) Verse 14—If the disciples ought to have taken bread and did not, was the forgetting a sinful act?

(11.) Is it ever wrong to forget and, so, under what circumstances?

(12.) Verses 15-16—As Jesus did not mean to reprove them for not taking bread, whether they were blameworthy or not, why did their consciences accuse them of neglect?

(13.) What does literal leaven do, and what did Jesus mean by "Beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and of the leaven of Herod?"

(14.) Why ought all who would be good to beware of Pharisaical hypocrisy, ostentation, pride, formalism and placing the letter before the spirit and of Herodian superstition, sensuality and cruelty?

(15.) What should be the compelling spirit of every Christian?

(16.) Verses 17-18—What part does a clear conscience, an unselfish spirit and a tender heart play in understanding the ways of God?

(17.) What error or sin were these apostles guilty of to merit this rebuke of Jesus?

(18.) Verses 19-21—When we do our duty is there any need to fear for our bread and butter? Why?

(19.) How many times in your life have you eaten all the food you have had or could procure, and how many times have you had plenty of food left after every meal? Then why do you worry for the future?

(20.) Verses 22-26—Why do you think Jesus used different outward methods in restoring sight to the blind?

(21.) How many different types of conversion and of religious experience are there? Did you ever know any two exactly alike?

(22.) What analogy is there between this man's experience and when our spiritual eyes are first opened?

BOY'S AWFUL FALL

Indianapolis Lad Lost Balance Peering From Window of Monument.

Indianapolis, Oct. 30.—Robert Polsgrove, aged three, fell from a window of the soldiers' monument and was instantly killed as he struck the stone work a hundred feet below. The boy struck a projecting figure of an eagle on the way down and was mangled before he alighted. The body was badly crushed and death was almost instantaneous.

The boy was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hampton Polsgrove, 648 Warren avenue. With his mother and two aunts he had gone to the monument on a sightseeing trip, and, left below by the women when they went up, Bobbie tried an excursion of his own. Circumstances surrounding the climb of Bobbie upward to where he was far beyond the eye of anyone about the monument were at first mysterious. Later J. J. Brown, secretary of the board in charge of the monument, said Mrs. Polsgrove had told Bobbie to go and sit in a chair in the office at the entrance and wait her return. Mr. Brown says the mother, intending to walk up the long stairway, evidently did not wish to carry the child and feared the climb would tire him.

NOT FAR AWAY

That Is Detectives' Belief Regarding Miss Singer's Murderers.

Chicago, Oct. 30.—Detectives have found clues that prompt them to predict confidently that the slayers of Miss Sophia G. Singer of Baltimore, who was found murdered in a rooming house in Indiana avenue, will be taken into custody in a few hours. Robbery was the apparent motive of the murder, as Miss Singer was known to have had considerable money.

The police learned that Charles D. Conway, a one-legged diver, and Beatrice Riall, a vaudeville actress, who occupied the apartments in Indiana avenue with the slain girl, who are suspected by the police in connection with the murder, and who are missing, were seen soon after the crime is supposed to have been committed, and it is believed by the detectives that they are hiding in the neighborhood.

Miss Singer came to Chicago early in October with William Warthen, a former Baltimore streetcar conductor, and according to his statement to the police, they were to have been married today. Warthen is twenty-six years old and Miss Singer was thirty.

Where the Fight is.

From every section of the country come reports of an awakening of the American people to the menace of free trade, together with their determination not to allow the election of a democratic candidate for the presidency.

The claim of 280 electoral votes for Taft is conservative. In the closing days of the campaign there has been a tremendous swing toward Taft. The impossibility of Roosevelt's election is at last realized by even his most ardent admirers and they are confronted by the fact that if they throw their votes away upon the Third Term candidate they make possible the infliction of a democratic administration upon the country.

The issue is now squarely between Taft and Wilson, protection and free trade. Careful and impartial observers of the political situation long ago asserted that the Third Term candidate could not possibly carry enough States to give him 266 votes in the electoral college but the claims of the Third Termers were so noisy and insistent that they misled the public. This week, however, the Republican national committee gave wide publicity to a statement which showed the percentage of the Republican vote which Roosevelt would have to receive in order to be elected. This was so convincing that it has put the quietus upon the Third Term candidate's pretensions. It is shown, for instance, that in Illinois it will be necessary for Roosevelt to secure the votes of seven out of every ten Republicans in order to carry the State. In Kansas he must get eight out of every ten Republicans. In Indiana he must get nine out of ten. Everybody knows that he cannot possibly receive this vote and as the same unattainable percentage prevail in practically every State, his election is absolutely impossible.

This showing is having a marked effect upon the voters. They are now brought face to face with the proposition that the fight is between Taft and Wilson and that every vote cast for Roosevelt aids in Wilson's election. Under these circumstances they are naturally declaring themselves for Taft.

This is not a free trade nation. The remarkable development of American industries under the beneficent policy of protection—a progress uninterrupted save for the four years of Democratic tariff-for-revenue-only administration—has convinced the American people that it would be not dangerous but absolute destructive of business to suddenly place the control of the government in the hands of a party which solemnly declares that protection is unconstitutional. The organization of a Prosperity League in Cincinnati, where several hundred business men have combined to help Taft's election, irrespective of their former politics, and the formation of Business Men's Taft leagues in Chicago and Kansas City with large numbers of representative merchants in both cities banded together to work for Taft, are indications of the almost universal feeling. It is typical of the general situation that in an Illinois town recently the procession which preceded the Taft meeting was participated in by the solid and substantial business element of the town.

Taft Democrats.

One of the most encouraging features of the campaign is the fact that many Democrats have announced their intention of supporting President Taft and the Republican ticket.

These Democrats are convinced that the election of Professor Wilson means a savage assault by the Democratic party upon the protective system under which the United States has developed unequalled prosperity.

Sam Sanderson Says:

That good straw vote men are much in demand now, as it takes a good reader of human nature to know to whom to give the straws.

They do not want to experience a repetition of the disastrous times which happened when the Democratic party was last in power.

With these men it is not a matter of politics but a matter of self preservation that leads them to support President Taft, whose re-election assures a continuance of prosperity. This being true, it is important that all Republicans should recognize the fact that the only way to defeat Woodrow Wilson is to vote for President Taft. Democratic business men and farmers all over the country show that they appreciate this fact and are determined to take no chances. Republicans should do likewise.

Concentration.

The circumstances under which the Boston Red Sox team finally won the world's championship suggest that winning athletics depends on many things besides ability for brilliant play.

When Snodgrass dropped an easy fly, when three of the "Giants" collected around a foul, all so rattled that they let the ball drop untouched on the ground, there is some faculty asleep, played to a finish or paralyzed, that should have been wide awake and vital.

One hand catches and home runs win fewer ball games than a continuous alertness. It is not the player who occasionally sets the fans in an uproar so much as the man who knows what is going on every second, and is always ready to act and act correctly.

In other words it comes down to the power of concentration. This comes pretty near spelling the winning combination on the ball field, in school, and in the race for business success. The New York players lost the world's championship because at a critical moment several of them lacked this supreme gift.

Neither the farmer nor the working man wants free trade in place of the present conditions of prosperity. Who does?

Every vote other than for President Taft means a vote for disaster and the destruction of American interests.

his former friends singing on a street corner to attract people to the house of worship. He followed them to church, but when the invitation was extended, he didn't have the nerve to go forward, he said, because he realized that he would have to break off will all his old life and associates. When the minister said the man who would not hold up his hand signifying that he wanted to be prayed for was a coward, he would not take that and held up his hand. He joined church, and that night there was great rejoicing in his father's house. McEwan said he cancelled all engagements and became an evangelistic singer, and since that time offers had been coming to him and he did not have to seek them. He was first with Dr. Torry, the noted evangelist, and when the latter was elected bishop, he was engaged by Dr. Biederwolf.

The program was opened with "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name" by the choir. After a prayer by the Rev. W. H. Wylie and the scripture reading by the Rev. A. W. Jamieson, the choir sang "All Hail Immanuel." McEwan sang "God Will Take Care of You," and then "Shadows," both of which were loudly applauded. The duet which McEwan sang with himself was the big hit of the evening. He sang with a record of his own voice on a Victrola, and the similarity between the two was very noticeable.

After the choir sang again, McEwan played "My Ain Country" on the Victrola, and the resemblance of the record to the way McEwan has sung it here was very pronounced. McEwan thanked Robert A. Innis for the use of the Victrola and George C. Wyatt & Co. for the use of some extra records he played.

While a short intermission in the program was being taken, the Rev. C. M. Yeum took opportunity to thank all the people on behalf of the local ministers for their aid in the meeting. He thanked the Rushville Natural Gas Co. for the use of its product, and added that he believed the Biederwolf Gas Co. also had something coming.

McEwan was presented with a huge bouquet of flowers with a card "From the Boys" on it. He was immensely pleased with the token of appreciation and esteem.

Colonel Durbin's Proposition

In 1902, as Governor, I made the proposition to the tax payers of the State if they would continue the Republican Finance Board and give me a Republican Legislature to hold down the appropriations, I would pay off the State debt that could be paid or leave money in the treasury or on the tax duplicate to pay the remainder. I did it.

I now make the proposition that if elected Governor, I will pay off every dollar of the State debt and not raise the taxes one penny in so doing.

I paid $2,808,000 on the debt during my administration, largely through the application of business methods. A vote for me is a vote to pay off the debt and thereby reduce the taxes.

Take your choice, Mr. Taxpayer.

Executive Committee of Republican
State Committee Issues Statement to Voters.

DEPEND ON THE SILENT VOTE

Drift Especially Noticeably in Rural
District Farmers Fear Return
of Panic of '92-'96.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Republican State Committee with State Chairman Fred Sims, the following address to the voters of the State was formulated and its publication authorized: To the Voters of Indiana:

Reports received from all parts of Indiana indicate a tremendous last hour drift to the Republican party. Despite the organized, persistent effort to create an impression to the contrary, which has been carried on for political effect, it is perfectly apparent that the battle in this State is between Wilson and Taft, between Ralston and Durbin. It is between the Republican and Democratic National and State tickets that the voter must choose in order to avoid throwing his ballot away. This realization is general at this time, not only among the Republicans, but among men of all parties; this in itself has accelerated the drift to the Republican standard of those who do not wish to jeopardize the prosperity of the Nation, and who place the welfare of the country above partisanship.

A significant feature of the situation is the announced determination of thousands of Indiana Democrats to support the Republican National and State tickets, which we believe is indicative of a still larger silent vote from that quarter for both Taft and Durbin. This drift is particularly noticeable in the rural districts where farmers view with apprehension the possibility of a return of the conditions which followed the election of 1892. The startling historic parallel between the campaign of 1892 and that of twenty years ago has not been lost upon those who passed through the national experience which followed the rejection of the protective policy at the end of the administration of President Harrison. The farmers have had their particular attention called to the possibilities involved in Republican defeat by a slump in the prices of live stock on the eve of election, and the fact that at sales held in hundreds of rural neighborhoods during the past month, farm animals have brought lower prices than have obtained for years, showing that farmers are already discounting the future because of the menace of another period of depression. There are single rural townships in Indiana in which the known Democratic slump to Taft runs from 25 to 50 votes. The information received by this committee also indicates that as election day approaches wage-earners, manufacturers and business men generally have begun seriously to deliberate upon the chance involved in a change at this time—and every vote against Taft is a vote for a change.

For weeks the unknown factor in the political equation has been the silent and undetermined vote. The developments of the past few days convince us that this silent vote will speak at the polls in behalf of the Republican National and State ticket. The blue sky promises of the "Progressive" politicians, who have advocated every issue believed to have within it the possibility of a vote, have failed to stand the test of that thoughtful weighing out which the reflecting citizenship of the State applies to every campaign profession. The revelation of the affiliation in former years of this very leadership with the very element of Big Business it has with self-righteous unctious condemned the notorious part these leaders have played in fastening upon the Republican party the abuses against which they inveigh, has brought home to the sober, thinking people of the State the conviction that theirs is and has been a campaign of "hysteria, hypocrisy and hypercriticism," as President Taft has so well expressed it.

We call the attention of Republicans to the fact that this is not the first campaign in which the Republican party in Indiana has had to confront serious defection, or even open treason. The party has for years been suffering with an accumulation of internal dissensions, growing largely out of personal disappointments and unsatisfied ambitions, and in the face of these has been able to cope as an equal, or nearly equal, adversary with the Democratic opposition in this State. The defection of this year is better organized and better advertised than that of four years ago, for instance, but it is not to be counted a new defection in its entirety by any means. In recent years the Republican poll in Indiana has been showing thousands upon thousands more than the Republican vote, and in so far as the new party vote will go to a third ticket, rather than direct to the opposition, the Republican party will benefit rather than lose by a substantial percentage of the new party vote. The leaders of the third party movement in Indiana were all disloyal to the Republican State ticket of 1908. We make this statement to show that the loss to the Republican party, by reason of the new party movement, is not a new loss, but in no small degree is an old defection appearing in a less dangerous form. And this year the loss has an offset in a support that comes to us from men of other parties who desire to maintain prosperity. This support is more general and pronounced in 1912 than in 1908, because four years ago, under President Roosevelt, there were two hundred thousand idle men hunting jobs in Indiana, and this year, under President Taft, there are probably two hundred thousand vacant jobs hunting men.

Plans for Halloween in the social season are progressing rapidly, most of the affairs will be held either tonight or tomorrow night.

With this day there are many traditional rites that are never omitted from the most up to date party. For instance, there is the "bobbing for apples" game, and another is the "mirror fortune telling game," and still another fortune telling game in the Halloween cake. In the cake are hidden various tiny trinkets, which are supposed to hint at the future fortune of the recipient. These, with many other games of the same nature, make the Halloween season one looked forward to from one year to the next.

Concerning the decorations for the Halloween parties there are cats and bats, pumpkins and hobgoblins, the witches and other ghostly decoration, all of which are important features of this season.

The events for the Halloween calendar have only been partially announced. The various literary clubs will observe Halloween at their regular meetings.

ANOTHER CASE OF SCARLET FEVER

Second One Develops in Glenwood
Which Results in Extra Precaution Being Taken.

SCHOOL NEAR FAIRVIEW OPENS

The Moffett school, near Fairview, which was closed last week because of scarlet fever in the Mont Richardson home, near the school, reopened Monday, and will continue, says the Connersville News. In Glenwood the school is still closed, for there is another case of the disease in Glenwood, the new patient being a child named Gerald Anderson. A series of revival meetings which were to have begun in the United Presbyterian church Tuesday night, have been postponed, and all public gatherings of whatsoever kind have been called off, pending the disappearance of the ailment.

In the Richardson home, near the Moffett school there are two new cases of the fever, but the patients have been within doors of late, and there is no fear of any spread of the malady from them.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Princess offers a Vitagraph comedy for the first picture tonight. It is entitled "The Lovesick Maiden of Cuddletown" and is said to be a very clever picture. "The Cowboy's Mother" is a powerful Selig western picture. Tomorrow night the famous Rube Marquard base ball pitcher will be shown.

Mlle La Belle, the mentalist will again be at the Palace theatre tonight. Mlle La Belle, as a mentalist proved all that had been said about her and the questions, asked were answered in an easy manner. The answers to many questions were really wonderful and Mlle La Belle is assured of a packed house tonight, when she appears for the last time here. The usual two pictures will be shown. "For the Sake of Her Men" is an American drama. The other is a Thanouser, "In Blossom Time."

SOCIETY NEWS

Miss Ida Elizabeth Cooning, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Cooning, and Will E. Carroll, of Plymouth, Ind., son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Carroll of this city, were married at the St. Mary's Catholic church this morning at nine o'clock. The church was filled with people who witnessed the impressive ceremony.

The bride was beautiful in a white satin gown, trimmed in shadow lace. She wore a full veil with the cap effect. She carried lilies of the valley.

Miss Esther Black, the maid of honor, wore a pink messaline dress, with silver trimming. She wore a tulle cap.

Miss Helen Black, one of the bridesmaids, was in lavender crepe de Chine, with persian banding and pearl trimming. She wore a Normandy cap.

Miss Mary Carroll, the second bridesmaid and sister of the bridegroom, also wore a gown of lavender crepe de Chine, with persian banding and pearl trimming. She also wore a Normandy cap.

Fred Wideman of Indianapolis and Berlin Caldwell, cousins of the bride, and Harry Osborne of this city, were the ushers. The bridegroom was unattended.

John Hill, Lester and Jerome Caron and little John W. Kelley were the servers. Miss Netie Moran sang "Ave Marie."

A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents to the members of the wedding party and immediate relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Carroll left this morning for their home in Plymouth, Ind., where they will be at home to their many

THE ROOT OF EVIL

BY THOMAS DIXON

Copyright, 1911, by Thomas Dixon

PROLOGUE.

This remarkable tale, in which each character is sketched from life by a master hand, goes beneath the surface of modern society and lays bare the canker at the root. Like all Mr. Dixon's work, it is a tale of American life, essentially true in the picture it draws and done with a swinging power which brings its dramatic scenes home to us. The splendid strength of the tale lies in the conflict between James Stuart and Nan, in which love and greed of wealth struggle for mastery.

CHAPTER I.

A Star Boarder.

AT the end of a warm spring day in New York, James Stuart sat in the open window of his room on Washington square smiling. With a sense of deep joy he watched the trees shake the raindrops from their new emerald robes and the flying clouds that decked the western sky melt into seas of purple and gold. A huckster turned into Fourth street crying: "Straw—berries, straw—berries!" And the young lawyer laughed lazily. A flood of tender memories stole into his heart from the sunlit fields of the south. He had gone hunting wild strawberries with Nan Primrose on the hills at home in North Carolina the day he first knew that he loved her. How beautiful she was that day in the plain blue cotton dress which fitted her superb young figure to perfection! How well he remembered every detail of that ramble over the red hills—he could hear now the whistle of a Bob White sitting on the fence near the spring where they lunched, calling to his mate. As Nan nestled closer

CATARRH SUFFERERS ASTONISHED

Booth's HYOMEI, the Soothing, Healing, Germ Destroying Air Gives Instant Relief.

If you already own a Hyomei hard rubber inhaler you can get a bottle of Hyomei for only 50c. The complete outfit, which includes inhaler, is $1.00 and is sold by F. B. Johnson and Co., on the money back plan.

With every bottle of HYOMEI comes a small booklet. This book tells how easy and simple it is to kill Catarrh germs and end Catarrh by just breathing into the lungs over the Catarrh infected membrane the powerful yet pleasant antiseptic air of Eucalyptus from the inland forests of Australia. This book tells about the HYOMEI vapor treatment for stubborn Catarrh, Croup, heavy Colds and Sore Throat, and other interesting facts.

park, and to meet the extraordinary expense began a careful and systematic search for rich young men to whom she could let two floors.

Stuart was sure in his heart that Nan had never joined in those plans of her mother, though he had wished that she might have shown a little more strength in resisting them.

Well, he was going to win at last, and the world was full of music! He had the biggest surprise of life in store for Nan, something no true woman's heart could resist. He had succeeded after incredible difficulties in secretly building a cottage by the sea in Brooklyn. Its lawn sloped to the water's edge, and a trim boat lay nodding at the dock. Neither Mrs. Primrose nor Nan had the faintest suspicion of what he had been doing.

Tomorrow he would lead his sweetheart into this holy of holies of life, the home love had built. He could see now the smile of tenderness break over her proud face as he should hand her the keys and ask her to fix the wedding day.

His reveries were broken by a timid knock on the door and a faint call: "Jim!"

"Come in!" he cried.

"You're not a bit glad to see me," the soft voice said. "I've been standing out there for ages."

"Forgive me, Sunshine. I must have been dreaming," Stuart pleaded, leaping from his seat and seizing her hand. "I'm awfully glad to see you!"

"Then don't call me that name again," she pouted.

"But isn't it beautiful?"

"It would be if my hair wasn't red and I didn't have freckles and was older," she protested, looking away to hide her emotion.

"But your hair isn't quite red, Harriet. It's just the color of the gold in honeycomb," he answered, gently touching her disheveled locks. "Besides, those few little freckles are becoming on your pink and white skin, and you are nearly fifteen. Well, I'll just say, 'little pal.' How's that?"

"That's better," she said, with a smile and sigh.

"Oh, Jim, I've been so dreadfully lonely since you were away! I declare, Jim, I'll die if you go away again. I just can't stand it!"

Stuart smilingly took her hand. "Lonely, Miss Chatterbox, when that big father of yours worships the very ground you walk on!"

"Yes, I know he does, Jim, and I love him, too, but you've no idea how dreadfully still the house is when you are gone. Oh, say, I want you to be a real boarder and eat with us. Of course you will."

"That would be very nice, dear, but I'm sure your father would draw the line at a real boarder. I'd never have got this beautiful room with that big old fashioned open fireplace in your home if it hadn't happened that our fathers fought each other in the war and became friends one day on a big battlefield. It's been a second home to me."

"Be our boarder and I'll make it a real home for you, Jim," she pleaded.

"Ah—you'll be making a real home some day for one of those boys I saw at your birthday party—the tall, dark one, I think?"

"No. He doesn't measure up to my standard."

"What ails him?"

"He's a coward. My hero must be brave, for I'm timid."

"Then it will be that fat blond fellow with a jolly laugh?"

"No; he's a fibber. My prince, when he comes, must be truthful. It's so hard for me always to tell the truth."

"Then it will be that dreamy looking one of fifteen you danced with twice?"

"No, he's too frail. My hero must be strong, for I am weak. And he must have a big, noble ideal of life; for mine is very small—just a little home nest and a baby and the love of one man!"

"I'm not sure about that being such a very small ideal, girlie."

"But, oh, my! I've forgotten what I came running home for. Papa sent me to ask you to please come down to the factory right away. He wants to see you on a very important matter. It must be awfully important. He looked so worried. I don't think I ever saw him worried before."

"I'll go at once," Stuart said.

He strode rapidly across town toward the Bowery, through Fourth street, wondering what could have happened to break the accustomed good humor of the doctor.

The doctor had long since retired from the practice of medicine as a profession and only used it now as his means of ministering to the wants of his neighbors. His neighbors were a large tribe, however, scattered all the way from the cellars and dives of Water street to the shanties and goat ranges of the upper Harlem. Stuart had never met a man so full of contagious health. He was a born physician. There was healing in the touch of his big hand. Healing light streamed from his brown eyes, and his iron gray beard sparkled with it. His presence in a sickroom seemed to fill it with waves of life, and his influence over the patients to whom he ministered was little short of hypnotic.

Stuart found the doctor standing at the door of his factory, shaking hands and chatting with his employees as they emerged from the building at the close of a day's work. A plain old fashioned brick structure just off the Bowery was this factory, and across the front ran a weatherbeaten sign which had not been changed for more than fifty years: "Henry Woodman, Manufacturing Chemist."

The doctor's father had established the business fifty-two years ago, and the son, who bore his father's name, had succeeded to its management on his death, which occurred just after the return of the younger man with his victorious regiment from their last campaign with Grant before Petersburg and Appomattox.

He took Stuart's hand in his big, crushing grip and handed him a letter, which he opened and read hastily:

No. 60 Gramercy Park.

To Dr. Henry Woodman:
Dear Sir—I must have an answer to the proposition of the American Chemical company before noon tomorrow. After that hour the matter will be definitely closed. JNO. C. CALHOUN BIVENS.

April 2, 1893.

Still looking at the letter he asked:

"What does it mean?"

"An ultimatum from the chemical trust. I'll explain to you when you've seen something of my work tonight. The first hour I want you to put in with me at the dispensary."

Stuart's eye rested on the embossed heading of the letter, "No. 60 Gramercy park," and he slowly crushed the paper. It was the Primrose house, Nan's home. Her mother had succeeded Bivens, the new sensation in high finance, she had established as her star boarder in Stuart's absence; Bivens, his schoolmate at college; Bivens, the little razorback scion of poor white trash from the south who had suddenly become a millionaire!

His blood boiled with rage. As he turned and followed the doctor he laughed with sudden fierce determination.

The dispensary was Woodman's hobby. The old fashioned drug store stood on a corner of the Bowery, and in the rear extension, which opened on the side street, he had established what he laughingly called his "life line," a free dispensary where any man needing medicine or a doctor's advice could have it without charge if unable to pay.

For two hours Stuart saw him minister with patience and skill to the friendless and the poor; for each a cheerful word and the warm grasp of his big hand with the prescription. The young lawyer watched with curious interest the quickened step with which each one left. The medicine had begun to work before the prescription was filled.

When the last applicant had gone Stuart turned to the doctor:

"And what is the proposition which the distinguished young head of the chemical trust has made you?"

"That I sell my business to them at their own valuation and come into the trust or get off the earth."

"And you wish my advice?"

"Yes."

"What figure did he name?"

"More than its cash value."

"Then you will accept, of course?"

"I would if there were not some things that can't be reckoned in terms of dollars and cents. If I take stock in the American Chemical company I am a party to their methods, an heir to their frauds."

"Yet isn't the old regime of the small manufacturer and the retailer doomed? Isn't combination the new order of modern life? Will it pay you to fight a losing battle? Bivens is not a man of broad culture, but he is a very smooth young gentleman."

"He's a contemptible little scamp!" snapped the older man. "When I took him into my drug store six years ago he didn't have a change of clothes. Now he's a millionaire. How did he get it? He stole a formula I had used to relieve nervous headaches, mixed it in water with a little poisonous color ing matter, pushed it into the soda fountain trade, made his first half million, organized the American Chemical company and blossomed into a magnate. And now this little soda fountain pip threatens me with ruin unless I join his gang and help him rob my neighbors. It happens that I like my neighbors. My business is to heal the sick, not merely to make money. Thousands of children die at my very door every summer who could be saved by a single prescription if they could get it. That's the thought that grips me when I begin to figure the profits in this trade. I'm making a fair living. I don't want any more out of my neighbors. I've shown you some of them tonight."

"I'll never forget them," Stuart broke in.

"We used to cry over Uncle Tom's woes," the doctor continued. "And yet there are more than 5,000,000 white people in America today who are the slaves of poverty, cruel and pitiless. The black slave always had food and shelter, clothes and medicine. My business is to heal the sick—mind you! Shall I give it up to exploit them?"

"But could you not use your greater wealth for greater good if you joined the trust?" the lawyer asked. "Won't they make drugs more economically than you do and drive you to the wall at last? Isn't this new law of co-operation the law of progress—in brief, the law of God?"

"That remains to be proved. I don't believe it."

"Well, I do, and I think that if you fight it will be against the stars in their courses!"

"I'm going to fight," was the firm response. "The law is on my side, isn't it?"

"The written law, yes. But you are facing a bigger question than one of statutory law."

"So I am, boy, so I am! That's why I gave you a glimpse tonight of the world in which I live and work and dream."

"Bivens has put up to you a cold blooded business proposition—"

"Exactly. And there are things that can't be bought and sold. I am one of them!" The stalwart figure rose in simple dignity, and there was a deep tremor in his voice as he paused.

"But I'm keeping you. It's 9 o'clock and somebody's waiting—eh, boy?"

"Yes," Stuart answered apologetically. "I'm afraid I've not been of much use to you tonight."

To be continued.

Mr. Workingman, This is What Wilson Thinks of You

"The objection, however, to the labor unions, is that they drag the highest man to the level of the lowest."—Address at New Rochelle, N. Y., reported in the New York Tribune of Feb. 27th, 1905.

"There is another as formidable an enemy to equality of freedom and opportunity as the capitalist—the labor organization and leader . . . Quite as monopolistic in spirit as the capitalist, and quite as apt to corrupt and ruin our industry by their monopoly."—Address before the South Carolina Society of New York, reported in the New York Tribune, March 19, 1907.

"The tendency of the modern labor union is to give to employers as little as possible for the amount they receive by way of wages . . . I need not point out how economically disastrous such a regulation of labor is. It is so unprofitable to the employer that in some trades it will presently not be worth while to attempt anything at all. Our economic supremacy may be lost because the country grows more and more full of unprofitable servants."—Address at annual commencement exercises of Princeton University, June, 1909.

In 1907, Mr. Joline, President of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railway Company, at Parsons, Kansas, in an address before the Board of Directors, in the course of his remarks said:

"Credit is the cornerstone and foundation of all business; and when you have the cruel hammer of the labor union striking you on the one side, and the reckless and unprincipled hammer of the political demagogue on the other, what becomes of your credit?"

Mr. Joline sent a copy of his address to Mr. Woodrow Wilson and Mr. Wilson answered saying:

"My dear Mr. Joline: Thank you very much for sending me your address at Parsons, Kansas, before the board of directors of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas R. R. Company. I have read it with relish and entire agreement. Would that we could do something at once dignified and effective to knock Mr. Bryan once for all into a cocked hat."

SHERMAN'S DEATH IS A MATTER OF HOURS

Physicians See Not a Single Ray of Hope.

Utica, N. Y., Oct. 30.—After a night which brought not a single ray of hope to the members of his family or to his physicians, Vice President James S. Sherman lies at his home in this city in the shadow of death. The vice president is slowly but surely losing ground and death apparently is a matter of but a short time. The end may come within twenty-four or forty-eight hours, or the sufferer may survive a week, but his case apparently is hopeless and the end, it would appear, cannot be deferred for long. Hypodermic medication has been resorted to by his physicians to ease his sufferings from the involvement of the kidneys, which have now failed to perform their functions, and as a result of the administering of these quieting medicines the vice president sleeps with very few periods of wakefulness.

Physician Offers No Hope.

Dr. F. H. Peck, the vice president's personal physician, says: "Mr. Sherman's heart action is fair, but the complications from his kidneys make his condition extremely critical because there is grave doubt if the kidneys will respond to remedial measures. Uraemia is now sapping the vitality of the vice president and I have great fear of the outcome. His condition could hardly be more desperate."

Dr. Peck is constantly at the bedside of the patient and the members of the vice president's family, Mrs. Sherman and her three sons, Sherrill, Richard and Thomas, are in the Sherman home waiting for the summons to the sick chamber which they dread but which they realize is inevitable. No visitors are received beyond relatives or intimate friends, and absolute quiet prevails in the Sherman mansion. No one is permitted in the sick room but the physicians, nurses, Mrs. Sherman and her three sons.

Head of Institution Dead.

Indianapolis, Oct. 30.—Dr. H. G. Leavitt, superintendent of the state's tuberculosis hospital at Rockville, died at the Methodist Episcopal hospital after an illness which had confined him to the hospital for a week. The board of trustees of the Rockville institution appointed Dr. W. A. Gekler, assistant superintendent of the hospital, to superintend the institution indefinitely.

BALKAN STATES DISPLAY FORCE

Turkish Troops Have Met a Formidable Enemy.

REVERSES ON ALL SIDES

The Bulgarians Are Continuing Their Advance, Which Is Marked by a Brilliant Flanking Movement Considered by Their Friends to Be a Bit Too Daring For Safety, While Other Allies Also Are Pushing Forward.

Athens, Oct. 30.—After a three hours' fight the Greeks captured Katrina. The Turks fled in disorder, with the Greek cavalry in pursuit. The Greeks have also captured Nalbankouli after a sharp fight. The Turks abandoned their guns and stores.

London, Oct. 30.—Vaguely and brokenly the telegraph is telling of important and decisive operations on the part of the Bulgars to the east of the position held by Nazim Pasha, the war minister of the Turks.

The eastern Bulgarian army has turned and is whirling south with all possible speed. There is a brilliant daring in the big flanking movement of the Bulgars that makes some of their friends think that it is too grave a risk that the fighters of the little state are undertaking.

One thing is certain, they have the war minister with his four army corps very securely bottled up in the country between Baba Eski and Lule Burgas. He cannot long hold grimly to his position. He must soon decide to fight or surrender. On his right flank he finds the Bulgars awaiting him in a line across the railroad into Adrianople. To the south of him he is cut off from Dimitika, where he had planned to retreat if necessary. If he turns to the east and the capital that he is fighting to defend, there are the ruins of the railroad bridge blown up by the Bulgarians to prevent his communication with Constantinople. It would seem to be the plan of the Bulgars to throw their eastern army across the railroad and make a wedge between the Turks and their capital. Then they can force the war minister back upon the waiting bayonets of the Bulgarians now besieging Adrianople.

There is a report that Bulgarian cavalry rode across country to the Sea of Marmora to the south and there took Rodosto. This report is not confirmed. It is known that the Turks have been landing men on the shores of the Black sea near Bunahisser, but no mention has heretofore been made of Rodosto. If that town has fallen the Bulgars must have a line across the railroad all the way from Adrianople down to the shores of the little sea and their flanking movement is practically completed.

Fighting along the Ergene river is said to be imminent. Saraj, on the Black sea, is another town where the dispatches predict an engagement. Saraj is but fifty miles from Constantinople.

Nazim Pasha, whose presence at the front is heartening the Ottoman troops, sends word that a battle is going on all along "the front."

The Servians are getting closer to Salonika every day and the Greeks, who have had so far easy going, are hurrying north to join them. Salonika itself is said to be unprovisioned for any siege, and most of its big guns in the fort have been sent away to the front.

There is nothing new from the Montenegrins, who are still hammering away at Scutari.

The octogenarian, Kiamil Pasha, who has already been three times grand vizier, has been appointed again to take the place of Ghazi Moukhar Pasha. Kiamil has been always friendly to Great Britain. He will at once begin the re-creating of the cabinet and will probably retain most of the present members.

HIDEOUS SAVAGERY

Irregular Allies of the Turks Mutilate Enemies.

Liepzig, Oct. 30.—A letter from Kirk-Killesseh, from a German who is serving with the Bulgarian Red Cross society, confirms previous reports of the ferocity of the fighting. He alleges that there have been hideous savageries by the Kurds, Tartars and Bashi-Bazouks, whose treatment of the wounded included the lopping off of ears and noses, the gouging out of eyes and the ripping open of bodies in order to increase the dying agonies of the wounded. The ferocity of these tribesmen in attacking, says the writer, mainly accounts for the slaughter of Bulgarians, some of whom have been found with their throats bitten through and the jugular veins thus severed. The fury of these irregulars alone enabled the Turkish commanders to withdraw the disciplined soldiers to Bunarhisser.

He Wanted "Taft's Job."

Washington, Oct. 30.—"I came to town to get Taft's job," was the explanation made by a man who described himself as Ira Otis Geiger of Oakland, Cal. He was arrested charged with insanity. Papers found on him indicated that Geiger was a member of the sign painters' union of San Francisco.

BEST $5 HE EVER SPENT

Bristol, Pa., Man Says So in This Letter.

Months of suffering and anxiety over his condition caused Mr. A. L. Kennedy of Bristol, Pa., to write this letter. He says: "Grippe and a bad cough caused me much suffering and worry for five long months, but that is all over now for I have taken Vinol and am perfectly well. I took five bottles and it was the best five dollars I ever spent."

In health one cannot realize how depressed a person may become after trying one remedy after another for such a condition as Mr. Kennedy was in, without benefit, or what a relief it is to find help and be restored to health and strength.

It is the combined action of the medicinal curative element of cods' livers without the greasy oil, aided by the bloodmaking and strength-creating properties of tonic iron, that makes Vinol so efficient in overcoming chronic coughs, colds and bronchitis at the same time building up the weakened run-down system.

We guarantee Vinol to give you perfect satisfaction. F. B. Johnson and Company, Rushville.

GAVE LESSONS TO DYNAMITERS

Practical Pointers In the Use of Clockwork.

SEATTLE SCIENTIST TESTIFIES

Prof. J. B. Wagner Tells Federal Court Jury at Indianapolis How He Innocently Assisted the Dynamiters in Their Work of Destruction by Giving to John McNamara Instructions in Construction of Infernal Machines.

Indianapolis, Oct. 30.—On the witness stand in the dynamiting cases, Professor J. B. Wagner of Seattle, told the jury how he had innocently assisted the dynamiters in their work of destruction. He said that J. J. McNamara came to him at Seattle in August, 1910, and asked instructions in causing explosions by the use of clock work. McNamara claimed that the arrangement did not always work and Wagner gave him lessons in the use of the device. A few days later, or on August 31, the Lyons building in Seattle was blown up. J. H. McCormack, of Seattle, said McNamara roomed with him at the time of the explosion and left the next day. He said McNamara remained in his room all day and went out at night, and came back with a basket of groceries. He told of finding a small clock in a cavity in the wall of the room McNamara occupied after he left.

That Herbert S. Hockin, indicted secretary-treasurer of the ironworkers aided the government in securing evidence against the 45 ironworkers, was further testified to by Charles E. Freeman, public accountant. Freeman told of going to the ironworkers' headquarters in December, 1911, and meeting Hockin, who pointed out check-books and other records which he took to the federal building. The witness identified many of the check-books, records, letters and other articles that passed under his notice during his employment. He testified that about 60,000 letters were taken from the ironworkers' offices at different times and each time Hockin was present.

Released on Bail.

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 30.—Elsie Ligon, who is charged with the murder of Jessie McCune of Lima, O., in a local resort several weeks ago, was released on a $1,000 bond. It is said she choked the McCune girl to death with a towel.

Fell From Train to Death.

Valparaiso, Ind., Oct. 30.—Gustav Fritz fell from a Grand Trunk freight train here and was crushed to death. He is survived by a large family.

He Took It to Heart.

Peru, Ind., Oct. 30.—Sylvester Brindel, aged eighteen, rejected suitor of a Wabash girl, committed suicide here by swallowing poison.

tive of invisible government. He has made that statement a number of times. If there is an invisible government in this fair State of Indiana, Albert J. Beveridge helped to fasten it on us while he was in the United States Senate. This is why George W. Perkins wants to be the invisible governor of Indiana.

"As I said before, Beveridge does not know me. He calls me Angel Sam." This was greeted by laughter.

"Beveridge has a cure for all ills," continued Mr. Ralston. "Durbin says he's a patent medicine man. I never use any adjectives in expressing my opinion of him. I take them from the month of his former bedfellows.

"He says that I would pick up a boss-made senator from Indiana and that he would be subservient to the interests. In the first place I will never name a senator unless some one dies. If I am called on to select a senator, I will not insult the fair womanhood of Indiana by appointing a Mormon." Mr. Ralston had to stop talking until the applause ceased.

"Beveridge never worked harder than he did in keeping Smoot in the senate. And he is a part of that invisible government, too."

Mr. Ralston said that Judge Spencer of Evansville, Democratic candidate for the supreme court in Indiana, was on the platform, and he paid a deep tribute to his integrity and ability.

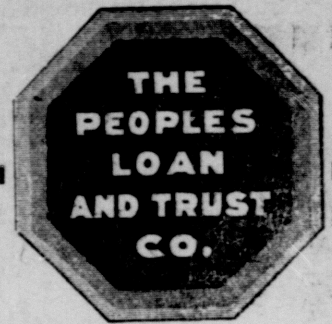

When the nominee mentioned the name of Woodrow Wilson, while discussing the national ticket, he was compelled to wait until the crowd stopped clapping.

"Many people object to him because he is a teacher," said Mr. Ralston, "but I observe that there are still a lot of people in the United States who need a teacher."

He emphasized the characteristics of Wilson, and closed with the thought that any one who was good enough for William Jennings Bryan to support was good enough for him. The mention of Bryan's name was a signal for spirited applause.

HIS CONDITION CRITICAL

Utica, N. Y., October 30.—Vice-President James S. Sherman passed a fairly comfortable night, but his condition was admittedly so precarious today that the physicians would not make any prediction regarding the outcome. It is known that members of the family are prepared for the death of the Vice-President at any time, and while he may ultimately fight off his malady and recover, the speed of uraemic poisoning has disheartened the physicians, who fear that his case is hopeless. Mr. Sherman's pulse was 100 today and his respiration 25. His temperature was practical normal.

PLANS FOR RALLY ARE COMPLETED

Big Political Demonstration Saturday Night Will Close Republican Campaign in County.

COMMITTEES START WORKING

Parade Promises to be Largest Ever Held Here—Meeting For Tonight Called Off.

FIRST VOTERS TO MEET

The Republican first voters of Rush county will hold a meeting Friday night at 7:30 o'clock in the court house to complete arrangements for their part in the big parade Saturday night. The first voters will form one section of the parade and will be one of the features. All first voters are requested to attend the meeting.

Plans for the big Republican rally Saturday night took definite form last night at a meeting held at headquarters. Committees were appointed and work was started this morning in an effort to make the rally the biggest political demonstration ever held in Rushville.

The meeting proposed for tonight was called off when it was decided to bend all efforts towards the Saturday night speaking, when James E. Watson will deliver an address in the tabernacle. The rally will close the Republican campaign in this city. One of the big features will be the torch light parade. The committees appointed last night will have charge of the parade.

It will undoubtedly be the largest ever held here. Every Republican in the county is to consider himself a committee of one and is to take part in the parade. If you are not on a committee don't think you are not wanted but join in the procession. The same applies to automobile owners. Every Republican automobile owner in the county will be invited to take part and asked to decorate their machines. The decorations however are no bar from taking part in the parade. The formation and line of march will be announced later.

The advertising committee was on the job early this morning and the surrounding cities were visited. Shelbyville promises to send a delegation of 500 and a special train will likely be run from Newcastle. The crowd is expected to equal any that was ever in the city. The following committees were appointed at the meeting last night:

Marshals of Parade.

Frank Redman, chairman; W. A. Alexander, Col. E. H. Wolfe, John C. Blackledge, William Bainbridge.

Committee on Arrangements.

Dr. F. M. Sparks, chairman; A. L. Riggs, Merrill Ball, Frank Capp.

Committee on Music.

Ab. Denning, chairman; Link Guffin.

Committee on Decorations.

Will Bliss, chairman; A. W. Posey, George Helm, Walter Hubbard, Ed. Crosby, Allen Daniels, George F. Moore, A. L. Gary, Grant Gregg, George Weeks, Roy Abercrombie, J. Vincent Young.

Committee on Invitations.

BEVERIDGE IS SLOW ON REFORM

Ralston Says He Could Get Into Democratic Party With 10 Years More Work.

AIMS OF GEORGE W. PERKINS

Democratic Nominee Devotes Latter Part of Speech to Assailing Bull Moose Candidate.

In the latter part of his speech at the tabernacle yesterday afternoon Samuel M. Ralston of Lebanon, the Democratic nominee for governor, paid some attention to the statements and assertions of Albert J. Beveridge, Bull Moose candidate for the governorship. The whole last part of his address was devoted to Mr. Beveridge and a brief enlogy of the Democratic State and national tickets.

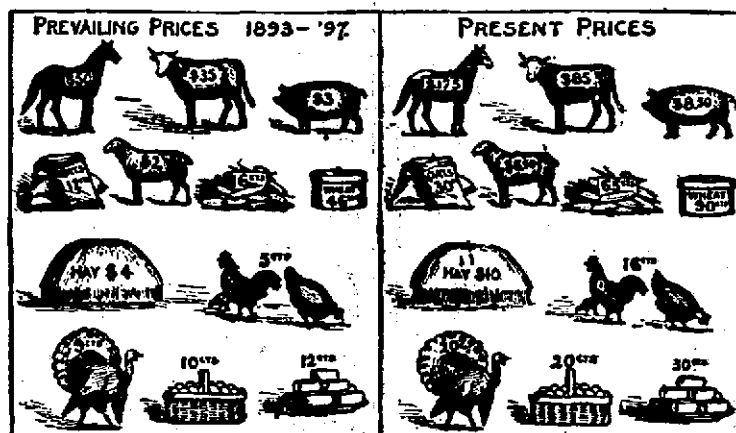

Mr. Ralston ridiculed the Bull Moose plan of Beveridge's to furnish free school books to the school children of Indiana. He said that the books would have to be paid for by some means, and that the people in the end would have to defray the expenses by paying an extra tax.

Mr. Ralston presented an argument against the Bull Moose plan of class legislation for paying road taxes. He declared that he did not understand why a farmer, who is intelligent and interested in road building because it helps to better his condition, could not work out his road tax as well if not better than a paid foreigner.

"If I had ten years more with Albert J. Beveridge," continued the Democratic nominee, "I could make him such a reformer that would entitle him to admission in the Democratic party. From the headway that I have made with him thus far I should imagine that it would require about eight years more."

"Beveridge has said many unkind things about me. I have never had anything but the kindest feelings and words for him. He says that I am a boss-made candidate, that I am the result of a machine that nominated me. He don't know me I see that. Do I look the part?"

"He says that I am a representative."

LOCAL WOMEN AT ANNUAL MEETING

Attending Woman's Synodical Societies of Home and Foreign Missions in Greensburg.

ENDS TOMORROW AFTERNOON

The thirtieth annual meeting of the Woman's Synodical Societies of the Home and Foreign Missions of Indiana is being held at the First Presbyterian church in Greensburg, starting yesterday afternoon and lasting till Thursday afternoon, and a number of the members of the First Presbyterian church of this city are attending the sessions.

The delegates from this church are Mrs. R. A. Petry and Mrs. Jeannette Carr. Mrs. B. O. Simpson, Mrs. Frank Reynolds and Mrs. John Boyd attended today's session.

Some very prominent women of the denomination will appear on the program, among them being the following: Mrs. John Balcom Shaw, of Chicago, president of the board of the northwest; Mrs. A. L. Berry of Chicago; Mrs. W. P. Chaffant, Weilsch; N. China; Miss Eva T. McCord, Chicago; Mrs. D. E. Pottre, New York; Mrs. A. K. Reishauer, Tokio, Japan. In addition to the addresses to be made by these noted women there will be talks and reports from women prominent in the Presbyterian work in Indiana.

The meeting is similar to the one held in Shelbyville recently by the men of the denomination.

BACK IN JAIL ONCE MORE

Police Capture Robert Harp After He Breaks Jail.

Robert Harp, who escaped from the Shelbyville jail Monday night, and who was thought to have come this way, was captured yesterday afternoon in Indianapolis. Harp was arrested a week ago for forgery. His brother who was also arrested and developments show that he is wanted at the Kentucky State prison for violating his parole. He was serving a ten years' sentence for killing a negro. Harp was followed to Indianapolis after he broke jail and his capture was an easy matter.

A SERIOUS QUESTION.

The serious question which you will have to decide in the voting booth on Tuesday, November 5, is whether you want a continuance of present prosperity or a return to the days of Democratic distress.

IT MAY BE CAUSE OF DIPHTHERIA

Burning of Leaves in Evening When Smoke Hangs to Earth Shouldn't be Practice.

AGAINST CITY ORDINANCE

Much unlawful burning of leaves in Rushville is being reported and much of it is believed to be due to an ignorance of the hours for burning leaves, which is specified in a city ordinance. The ordinance provides that it shall be unlawful for any person to burn leaves in the city of Rushville before 6 o'clock a. m. or after 2 o'clock p. m.

The ordinance is very plain in this respect and it can readily be seen that to burn leaves before 6 o'clock a. m. or after 2 o'clock p. m., is unlawful.

Many people are said to be burning leaves after 4 o'clock p. m. and this is not only an unlawful time, but a very dangerous time, besides, for the reason that the smoke does not ascend, but instead hangs low and finally steals in and about the homes. The leaves are now green and the smoke from them is especially dense and irritating to throats. The smoke is especially annoying to persons who are afflicted with asthma, and some physicians claim that smoke from burning leaves brings on diphtheria.

"The Root of Evil," by Thomas Dixon, Begins Today.

A story with thrills, an absorbing romance of a southern family in New York, is "The Root of Evil," a serial by Thomas Dixon, which appears for the first time in today's issue on page six. The author of this new and romantic novel has also written "The Leopard's Spots," "The Clansman" and other books of equal fame. "The Root of Evil" is one you can not afford to miss. It is teeming with human interest, and the characters are all true to life.

TWO VACANCIES FILLED BY BOARD

Commissioners Name Inspectors and Complete List For General Election Next Tuesday.

TRUSTEE ALWAYS ACTS AS ONE

Law Requires Them to Report Vote Immediately After Conclusion of Count.

The county commissioners met yesterday and filled two vacancies in the list of inspectors for the coming election. They were appointed by the board early in September.

The county election commission wishes to emphasize upon the inspectors the fact that the returns from their precinct should be made as soon as possible after the final count. It is absolutely imperative that this be heeded by the inspectors.

Besides the election laws of Indiana make it mandatory for the inspectors. The law says in this regard: "The vote must be returned by the Inspector to the Clerk's office in the Court House immediately on the conclusion of the count."

There have been many rank violations of this section of the election. In one instance last year a precinct inspector went to bed after the vote was counted in his precinct, and did not get into Rushville until after eight o'clock in the morning. Thus the real vote in the county could not be ascertained until that time. There have been instances like this in practically every election.

The remainder of the election board, two judges, two clerks and two sheriffs, are appointed by the inspector. The inspector generally acts on the recommendation of the county chairman of the two leading parties. The vacancies filled in the list of inspectors yesterday by the board of commissioners were in precinct No. 1 in Posey and in precinct No. 2 in Anderson. William Gowdy was appointed in the former and Wylie McKee in the latter. The trustee of the township acts as inspector in his precinct according to the law.

The following is the list of the inspectors in the county.

M'EWAN TELLS HIS LIFE STORY

Former Light Opera and Vaudeville Performer Recites Story of Real Human Interest.

CONVERTED ON RETURN HOME

His Solos and "Duet" With Himself Make Sacred Concert an Enjoyable Event.

William McEwan, choir leader at the Biedervolf evangelistic meetings at the tabernacle, former vaudeville and light opera performer, told the story of his conversion to a Christian life, even though he had been a confessing Christian from childhood, and entertained an audience of more than twenty-five hundred people at the tabernacle with his sweet tenor voice, and with numbers by the chorus choir, which has been under his direction during the revival.

McEwan's story of his life came as the climax of the pleasant evening's entertainment, and he saved it until the end. McEwan has a true Scotch dialect. His story was impressive and well taken.

McEwan was born of poor parentage in Scotland and reared in the strict Reformed Presbyterian church. His father earned six dollars a week to support his family. McEwan said he never knew what it was to sing a Gospel hymn in his boyhood days because the church to which he went always sang the Psalms.

In early life his parents discovered that he had a sweet voice and his father's ambition for him to succeed was so great that he contrived to arrange for him to study under one of Scotland's greatest music masters. He learned fast, became a concert singer and won instantaneous success.

He came to America when a young man, did a little concert work and returned to his native land where he found his sweetheart, as he put it. He was married and returned to America where he engaged in light opera and vaudeville work because it offered more lucrative wages.

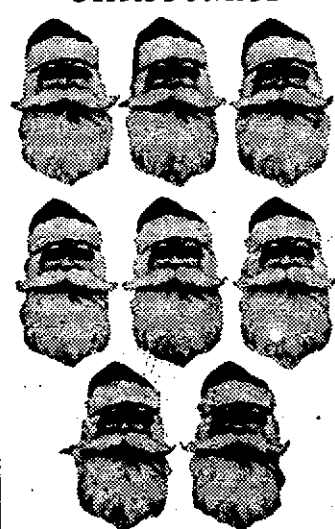

McEwan said life "on the road" was hardly conducive to Christianity. He declared people on the stage got together each Sunday and sang "Where is My Wandering Boy Tonight" and thought they were right with God until next Sunday. That's all the religion, he declared, that is to be found among stage folks.

While on the stage, the choirster said, he learned to drink. Although he was never a drunkard, he said, he had been under the influence of drink. His wife traveled with him continually and after their first child was born, Mrs. McEwan had a desire to return home. McEwan said he took her to New York and put her on a steamship. His desire was so great to return that he could not overcome it, and the next day he left on a boat sailing from Boston, arriving home a day after his wife.

His father then lived in Scotland, and on one Saturday night he was to appear in a show there, and all his old friends were to turn out to give him a reception. After the show, he said, they all went out for a time. He said he was under the influence of drink when he got home that night, and his father was very much put out about it. That night his father extracted a promise from him to attend church the next day.

He started, and met a crowd of

LOOKING ABOUT FOR PRECEDENT

What Would Happen In Case of Sherman's Death?

SITUATION IS COMPLICATED

With the Physicians Offering No Hope For the Recovery of the Vice President, the Necessity of Filling the Taft Ticket, in Case Death Should Occur Before the Election, is Causing Politicians No End of Worry.

Washington, Oct. 30.—Either before or after election a very complicated situation would probably be created by the death of Vice President Sherman. It was suggested today by prominent party leaders that Mr. Sherman, in view of his critical illness and the fact that his doctors have pronounced him incurable, might authorize the withdrawal of his name as his party's candidate for vice president. In such a contingency the duty of filling the vacancy on the Republican ticket, under immortal usage, would devolve on the Republican national committee. Just before adjourning, the Chicago convention, conforming to precedent, passed a formal resolution authorizing the national committee to fill any vacancy that might occur on the ticket or in their organization.

It was suggested that if a vacancy occurred before election, the committee might name Governor Hadley of Missouri, who was urged as President Taft's running mate at a time when it was understood Vice President Sherman would not be a candidate for reelection.

When the house of representatives canvassed the vote of the electors chosen on the Greeley-Brown ticket in 1872, Mr. Greeley having died after the election and before the ticket was canvassed, it was found that all but three of the electors had voted for candidates other than Greeley. Three from Georgia voted for Greeley. The three cast for Greeley were thrown out because the man for whom they were cast was not alive and they were held to be irregular.

In view of the Greeley precedent electoral votes cast after the vacancy had occurred could not be canvassed as cast, but it was suggested that if the vacancy occurred after the votes are cast and before the vote is canvassed, the problem could be solved by re-convening the electors in the several states and having them make another choice.

A more serious complication, however, would be created by Mr. Sherman's death after election day if the selection of a president were thrown into the house of representatives, as is entirely possible. The house is now evenly divided between Republicans and Democrats, and in case it should fail to elect a president the duty would devolve on the senate of selecting a vice president, who in turn would become president. Their choice, unlike that in the house, would be limited to the two candidates having the highest number of votes for office.

TO TEST STRENGTH

Colonel Roosevelt Feels Equal to Task of Speaking Tonight.

Oyster Bay, Oct. 30.—By way of preparing himself for the supreme effort tonight, which he and his physicians know will tax him to the utmost, Col. Roosevelt has been saving himself. No political visitors have been received. The colonel looks well and vigorous and his arm seems to be distinctly better. It fell into the old gestures with just a little noticeable stiffness.

A private car will bear Col. Roosevelt to the Pennsylvania terminal late this afternoon and special precautions have been made to protect him from the rush of the crowd both en route to Madison Square Garden and on his return to the station which will be made immediately after he has spoken. His doctors adhere to their determination that he shall return to Oyster Bay without delay.

ON THE GO

Governor Wilson Will Be Busy Until Election Day.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 30.—Governor Wilson made a speech this morning at 10 o'clock at Cape May courthouse. From there he motored to Wildwood, where he spoke at 2 o'clock. From Wildwood he will go by train to Burlington, where he will address a mass meeting in the evening. A late night trip to Princeton by automobile will complete today's itinerary.

Most of tomorrow will be spent by the governor in Princeton preparing for his speech at Madison Square Garden that night. Friday he will make his trip to Rochester, returning to New York to review the Wilson and Marshall parade Saturday afternoon. The governor will wind up his campaign with a trip to Passaic county next Tuesday.

Sentenced For Life.

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 30.—Clint Beverly, colored, of Madisonville, Ky., was found guilty of murder in the first degree and sentenced to life imprisonment. One of the jurors voted for the death penalty. Beverly shot his wife as she was coming from a moving picture show with another man.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

A MISTAKEN POLICY.

(Fort Wayne News.)

The bull moose press, is making the most of the attack upon Colonel Roosevelt and apparently sees in the incident a political asset of material value. The Indianapolis Star in shrieking headlines gladsomely proclaims that the attempted murder will turn thousands of voters to the colonel, and on all sides there seems to be a disposition to regard the tragic affair as a heaven-sent boon. At the same time the occasion is seized upon as one suitable for the administration of an awful chastisement upon those papers and orators that during the campaign have seen fit to lampoon the colonel. The statement of the miserable Schrenk that he was inspired by the articles in the New York World, Dr. Wilson's personal organ, is seized upon with activity and we are told that such papers should promptly be suppressed. In a way this is all very well, yet at the same time it is well to preserve our mental poise and to remember that during this contest it has been a case of give and take. Colonel Roosevelt and his supporters have not suffered quietly under the exhortations that have been directed against them. Far from it. Rather have they set the pace and certainly no one can honestly allege that they have been either temperate or reasonable in their assaults upon their opposition. They have led the fighting.

Some days ago the News, after

Governor Marshall had been struck in the face in with a stone, speculated upon just such an occurrence as that of Monday night and called serious attention to the extremes to which the orators had proceeded in their resort to personalities. It declared that in case one of the national candidates should be assassinated the country would speedily come to its senses and deeply regret a tragedy for which the radical partisanship of the whole people was fundamentally to blame. The narrow escape from a horror of that character has had in a great measure the effect desired, but it will not be a quiet of long continuance if the organs of Colonel Roosevelt persist in the crucifixion of the papers that have opposed him. The opportunity for retort is too magnificent.

PETITION FOR GUARDIAN.

Newcastle Courier: Mrs. Agnes Heaton of Knightstown has filed a petition asking that the court appoint a guardian for her husband, Robert S. Heaton. She charges that he is an habitual drunkard. It is stated in the petition that he has real estate valued at $35,000 and $4,000 in personal property.

ONWARD COXEY'S ARMY.

Muncie Press: It's better for even a bull mooser to sing "Onward Christian Soldier" in the midst of Republican prosperity than to have to cry "Onward Coxeys Army" next door to soup houses under such an administration as followed the failure of the people to stand by President Harrison in 1892.

MR. TAFT IN HOPEFUL MOOD FACING POLLS

President in High Spirits Following Conference.

New York, Oct. 30.—President Taft said to reporters who trooped in to see him at the end of a conference in which the president met Republican leaders representing New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Massachusetts at the Manhattan hotel last night:

"All I can say is that a number of distinguished gentlemen with whom I have conferred seem to be in accord as to the wisdom the American people would show if they re-elected me, and also as to the reasonable probability that they will do so."

The president seemed to be in high spirits as he said this. He had just been assured by State Chairman Barnes of New York, and Senator Murray Crane, of Massachusetts that he would carry these two states among others.

The conference was the only big Republican gathering of the sort that has taken place in New York in this campaign. To it had been invited all the Republican candidates of congress of this city as well as all the New York state leaders and a selected few from the three other states. It was held in the state room of the Manhattan, after a dinner at which were President Taft, his two brothers, Henry W. and Charles P. Taft, Chairman Charles D. Hilles, of the national committee; Major Thomas L. Rhoads, and Lieutenant John W. Timmons, the president's personal aides.

Informality marked the conference. The president standing near the center of the room hailed the visitors,

TAKEN FROM BRIDE

Young Dozier Sent to Jail on Complaint of Father.

Macon, Ga., Oct. 30.—Young Vogt Dozier, who yesterday married Essie Carter, who had been cruelly flogged by his father to break off the relations of the couple, was arrested a few hours later and taken to Dawson and lodged in jail. Young Dozier was arrested at the instance of his father.

The officers found Dozier in company with his bride and literally dragged him from her arms.

Young Dozier is charged by the Dawson authorities with several minor offenses. The elder Dozier says he will keep the boy in jail forever rather than let him live with his wife.

The Sign and the Leaven. Mark viii:11-26.

Golden Text—Jesus spake unto them, saying, I am the light of the world; he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life. John viii:12.

(1.) Verse 11—How do you account for the fact that religious differences generally stir much antagonism?

(2.) Why is it impossible to learn spiritual truth when in an antagonistic frame of mind?

(3.) What caused the Sadducees and Pharisees, who hated each other, to unite in their hatred of Jesus?

(4.) What was the nature of the "sign" they wanted?

(5.) Verses 12-13—What reason is there to believe that if Jesus had performed ever so wonderful a "sign" it would have made any difference in their attitude to him?

(6.) Why did their request for a sign make Jesus feel so sad? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

(7.) Was their opposition to Jesus honest or dishonest? Give your reasons.

(8.) Why did not the wonderful "signs" which Jesus had already performed satisfy them?

(9.) Which cause is the more influential in keeping men from Christ today, a lack of evidence of the truth of Christianity or the love of sin? Give your reasons.

(10.) Verse 14—If the disciples ought to have taken bread and did not, was the forgetting a sinful act?

(11.) Is it ever wrong to forget and, if so, under what circumstances?

(12.) Verses 15-16—As Jesus did not mean to reproach them for not taking bread, whether they were blameworthy or not, why did their consciences accuse them of neglect?

(13.) What does literal leaven do, and what did Jesus mean by "Beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and of the leaven of Herod?"

(14.) Why ought all who would be good to beware of pharisaical hypocrisy, ostentation, pride, formalism and placing the letter before the spirit and of Herodian superstition, sensuality and cruelty?

(15.) What should be the compelling spirit of every Christ man?

(16.) Verses 17-18—What part does a clear conscience, an unselfish spirit and a tender heart play in understanding the ways of God?

(17.) What error or sin were these apostles guilty of to merit this rebuke of Jesus?

(18.) Verses 19-21—When we do our duty is there any need to fear for our bread and butter? Why?

(19.) How many times in your life have you eaten all the food you have had or could procure, and how many times have you had plenty of food left after every meal? Then why do you worry for the future?

(20.) Verses 22-26—Why do you think Jesus used different outward methods in restoring sight to the blind?

(21.) How many different types of conversion and of religious experience are there? Did you ever know any two exactly alike?

(22.) What analogy is there between this man's experience and when our spiritual eyes are first opened? Lesson for Sunday, Nov. 10, 1912. World's Temperance Sunday. Hosea vii.

BOY'S AWFUL FALL

Indianapolis Lad Lost Balance Peering From Window of Monument.

Indianapolis, Oct. 30.—Robert Polsgrove, aged three, fell from a window of the soldiers' monument and was instantly killed as he struck the stone work a hundred feet below. The boy struck a projecting figure of an eagle on the way down and was mangled before he alighted. The body was badly crushed and death was almost instantaneous.

The boy was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hampton Polsgrove, 648 Warren avenue. With his mother and two aunts he had gone to the monument on a sightseeing trip, and, left below by the women when they went up, Bobbie tried an excursion of his own. Circumstances surrounding the climb of Bobbie upward to where he was far beyond the eye of anyone about the monument were at first mysterious. Later J. J. Brown, secretary of the board in charge of the monument, said Mrs. Polsgrove had told Bobbie to go and sit in a chair in the office at the entrance and wait her return. Mr. Brown says the mother, intending to walk up the long stairway, evidently did not wish to carry the child and feared the climb would tire him.

NOT FAR AWAY

That Is Detectives' Belief Regarding Miss Singer's Murderers.

Chicago, Oct. 30.—Detectives have found clues that prompt them to predict confidently that the slayers of Miss Sophia G. Slager of Baltimore, who was found murdered in a rooming house in Indiana avenue, will be taken into custody in a few hours. Robbery was the apparent motive of the murder, as Miss Singer was known to have had considerable money.

The police learned that Charles D. Conway, a one-legged diver, and Beatrice Riall, a vaudeville actress, who occupied the apartments in Indiana avenue with the slain girl, who are suspected by the police in connection with the murder, and who are missing, were seen soon after the crime is supposed to have been committed, and it is believed by the detectives that they are hiding in the neighborhood.

Miss Singer came to Chicago early in October with William Warthen, a former Baltimore streetcar conductor, and according to his statement to the police, they were to have been married today. Warthen is twenty-six years old and Miss Singer was thirty.

Where the Fight is.

From every section of the country come reports of an awakening of the American people to the menace of free trade, together with their determination not to allow the election of a democratic candidate for the presidency.

The claim of 280 electoral votes for Taft is conservative. In the closing days of the campaign there has been a tremendous swing toward Taft. The impossibility of Roosevelt's election is at last realized by even his most ardent admirers and they are confronted by the fact that if they throw their votes away upon the Third Term candidate they make possible the infliction of a democratic administration upon the country.

The issue is now squarely between Taft and Wilson, protection and free trade. Careful and impartial observers of the political situation long ago asserted that the Third Term candidate could not possibly carry enough States to give him 266 votes in the electoral college but the claims of the Third Termers were so noisy and insistent that they misled the public. This week, however, the Republican national committee gave wide publicity to a statement which showed the percentage of the Republican vote which Roosevelt would have to receive in order to be elected. This was so convincing that it has put the quietus upon the Third Term candidate's pretensions. It is shown, for instance, that in Illinois it will be necessary for Roosevelt to secure the votes of seven out of every ten Republicans in order to carry the State. In Kansas he must get eight out of every ten Republicans. In Indiana he must get nine out of ten. Everybody knows that he cannot possibly receive this vote and as the same unattainable percentage prevail in practically every State, his election is absolutely impossible.

This showing is having a marked effect upon the voters. They are now brought face to face with the proposition that the fight is between Taft and Wilson and that every vote cast for Roosevelt aids in Wilson's election. Under these circumstances they are naturally declaring themselves for Taft.

This is not a free trade nation. The remarkable development of American industries under the beneficent policy of protection—a progress uninterrupted save for the four years of Democratic tariff-for-revenue-only administration—has convinced the American people that it would be not dangerous but absolute destructive of business to suddenly place the control of the government in the hands of a party which solemnly declares that protection is unconstitutional. The organization of a Prosperity League in Cincinnati, where several hundred business men have combined to help Taft's election, irrespective of their former politics, and the formation of Business Men's Taft leagues in Chicago and Kansas City with large numbers of representative merchants in both cities banded together to work for Taft, are indications of the almost universal feeling. It is typical of the general situation that in an Illinois town recently the procession which preceded the Taft meeting was participated in by the solid and substantial business element of the town.

Taft Democrats.

One of the most encouraging features of the campaign is the fact that many Democrats have announced their intention of supporting President Taft and the Republican ticket.

These Democrats are convinced that the election of Professor Wilson means a savage assault by the Democratic party upon the protective system under which the United States has developed unequalled prosperity.

Sam Sanderson Says:

That good straw vote men are much in demand now, as it takes a good reader of human nature to know to whom to give the straws.

They do not want to experience a repetition of the disastrous times which happened when the Democratic party was last in power.

With these men it is not a matter of politics but a matter of self preservation that leads them to support President Taft, whose re-election assures a continuance of prosperity. This being true, it is important that all Republicans should recognize the fact that the only way to defeat Woodrow Wilson is to vote for President Taft. Democratic business men and farmers all over the country show that they appreciate this fact and are determined to take no chances. Republicans should do likewise.

Concentration.

The circumstances under which the Boston Red Sox team finally won the world's championship suggest that winning athletics depends on many things besides ability for brilliant play.

When Snodgrass dropped an easy fly, when three of the "Giants" collected around a foul, all so rattled that they let the ball drop untouched on the ground, there is some faculty asleep, played to a finish or paralyzed, that should have been wide awake and vital.

One hand catches and home runs win fewer ball games than a continuous alertness. It is not the player who occasionally sets the fans in an uproar so much as the man who knows what is going on every second, and is always ready to act and act correctly.

In other words it comes down to the power of concentration. This comes pretty near spelling the winning combination on the ball field, in school, and in the race for business success. The New York players lost the world's championship because at a critical moment several of them lacked this supreme gift.

Neither the farmer nor the working man wants free trade in place of the present conditions of prosperity. Who does?

Every vote other than for President Taft means a vote for disaster and the destruction of American interests.

M'EWAN TELLS HIS LIFE STORY

his former friends singing on a street corner to attract people to the house of worship. He followed them to church, but when the invitation was extended, he didn't have the nerve to go forward, he said, because he realized that he would have to break off will all his old life and associates. When the minister said the man who would not hold up his hand signifying that he wanted to be prayed for was a coward, he would not take that and held up his hand. He joined church, and that night there was great rejoicing in his father's house. McEwan said he cancelled all engagements and became an evangelistic singer, and since that time offers had been coming to him and he did not have to seek them. He was first with Dr. Torrey, the noted evangelist, and when the latter was elected bishop, he was engaged by Dr. Biedervolf.

The program was opened with "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name" by the choir. After a prayer by the Rev. W. H. Wylie and the scripture reading by the Rev. A. W. Jamieson, the choir sang "All Hail Immanuel." McEwan sang "God Will Take Care of You," and then "Shadows," both of which were loudly applauded. The duet which McEwan sang with himself was the big hit of the evening. He sang with a record of his own voice on a Victrola, and the similarity between the two was very noticeable.

After the choir sang again, McEwan played "My Ain Countree" on the Victrola, and the resemblance of the record to the way McEwan has sung it here was very pronounced. McEwan thanked Robert A. Innis for the use of the Victrola and George C. Wyatt & Co. for the use of some extra records he played.

While a short intermission in the program was being taken, the Rev. C. M. Yocum took opportunity to thank all the people on behalf of the local ministers for their aid in the meeting. He thanked the Rushville Natural Gas Co. for the use of its product, and added that he believed the Biedervolf Gas Co. also had something coming.

McEwan was presented with a huge bouquet of flowers with a card "From the Boys" on it. He was immensely pleased with the token of appreciation and esteem.

Colonel Durbin's Proposition

In 1902, as Governor, I made the proposition to the tax payers of the State if they would continue the Republican Finance Board and give me a Republican Legislature to hold down the appropriations, I would pay off the State debt that could be paid or leave money in the treasury or on the tax duplicate to pay the remainder. I did it.

I now make the proposition that if elected Governor, I will pay off every dollar of the State debt and not raise the taxes one penny in so doing.

I paid $2,808,000 on the debt during my administration, largely through the application of business methods. A vote for me is a vote to pay off the debt and thereby reduce the taxes.

Take your choice, Mr. Taxpayer.

Executive Committee of Republican
State Committee Issues State-
ment to Voters.

DEPEND ON THE SILENT VOTE

Drift Especially Noticeably in Rural
District Farmers Fear Return
of Panic of '92-'96.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Republican State Committee with State Chairman Fred Sims, the following address to the voters of the State was formulated and its publication authorized: To the Voters of Indiana:

Reports received from all parts of Indiana indicate a tremendous last hour drift to the Republican party. Despite the organized, persistent effort to create an impression to the contrary, which has been carried on for political effect, it is perfectly apparent that the battle in this State is between Wilson and Taft, between Ralston and Durbin. It is between the Republican and Democratic National and State tickets that the voter must choose in order to avoid throwing his ballot away. This realization is general at this time, not only among the Republicans, but among men of all parties; this in itself has accelerated the drift to the Republican standard of those who do not wish to jeopardize the prosperity of the Nation, and who place the welfare of the country above partisanship.

A significant feature of the situation is the announced determination of thousands of Indiana Democrats to support the Republican National and State tickets, which we believe is indicative of a still larger silent vote from that quarter for both Taft and Durbin. This drift is particularly noticeable in the rural districts where farmers view with apprehension the possibility of a return of the conditions which followed the election of 1892. The startling historical parallel between the campaign of 1892 and that of twenty years ago has not been lost upon those who passed through the national experience which followed the rejection of the protective policy at the end of the administration of President Harrison. The farmers have had their particular attention called to the hardships involved in Republican defeat by a slump in the prices of live stock on the eve of election, and the fact that at sales held in hundreds of rural neighborhoods during the past month, farm animals have brought lower prices than have obtained for years, showing that farmers are already discounting the future because of the menace of another period of depression. There are single rural townships in Indiana in which the known Democratic slump to Taft runs from 25 to 50 votes. The information received by this committee also indicates that as election day approaches wage-earners, manufacturers and business men generally have begun seriously to deliberate upon the chance involved in a change at this time—and every vote against Taft is a vote for a change.

For weeks the unknown factor in the political equation has been the silent and undetermined vote. The developments of the past few days convince us that this silent vote will speak at the polls in behalf of the Republican National and State ticket. The blue sky promises of the "Progressive" politicians, who have advocated every issue believed to have within it the possibility of a vote, have failed to stand the test of that thoughtful weighing out which the reflecting citizenship of the State applies to every campaign profession. The revelation of the affiliation in former years of this very leadership with the very element of Big Business it has with self-righteous unctious condemned the notorious part these leaders have played in fastening upon the Republican party the abuses against which they inveigh, has brought home to the sober, thinking people of the State the conviction that theirs is and has been a campaign of "hysteria, hypocrisy and hypercriticism," as President Taft has so well expressed it.

We call the attention of Republicans to the fact that this is not the first campaign in which the Republican party in Indiana has had to confront serious defection, or even open treason. The party has for years been suffering with an accumulation of internal dissensions, growing largely out of personal disappointments and unsatisfied ambitions, and in the face of these has been able to cope as an equal, or nearly equal, adversary with the Democratic opposition in this State. The defection of this year is better organized and better advertised than that of four years ago, for instance, but it is not to be counted a new defection in its entirety by any means. In recent years the Republican poll in Indiana has been showing thousands upon thousands more than the Republican vote, and in so far as the new party vote will go to a third ticket, rather than direct to the opposition, the Republican party will benefit rather than lose by a substantial percentage of the new party vote. The leaders of the third party movement in Indiana were all disloyal to the Republican State ticket of 1908. We make this statement to show that the loss to the Republican party, by reason of the new party movement, is not a new loss, but in no small degree is an old defection appearing in a less dangerous form. And this year the loss has an offset in a support that comes to us from men of other parties who desire to maintain prosperity. This support is more general and pronounced in 1912 than in 1908, because four years ago, under President Roosevelt, there were two hundred thousand idle men hunting jobs in Indiana, and this year, under President Taft, there are probably two hundred thousand vacant jobs hunting men.

Plans for Halloween in the social season are progressing rapidly, most of the affairs will be held either tonight or tomorrow night.

With this day there are many traditional rites that are never omitted from the most up to date party. For instance, there is the "bobbing for apples" game, and another is the "mirror fortune telling game," and still another fortune telling game in the Halloween cake. In the cake are hidden various tiny trinkets, which are supposed to hint at the future fortune of the recipient. These, with many other games of the same nature, make the Halloween season one looked forward to from one year to the next.

Concerning the decorations for the Halloween parties there are cats and bats, pumpkins and hobgoblins, the witches and other ghostly decorations, all of which are important features of this season.

The events for the Halloween calendar have only been partially announced. The various literary clubs will observe Halloween at their regular meetings.

High Standards

One reason why this bank has become a large factor in the important financial and commercial affairs of Rushville is that

It has always maintained a high standard of ideals.

It has confined its business to strictly legitimate channels, and has always sought stability before profit.

It has won the confidence of banks and business men.

It welcomes accounts with business men and individuals who recognize the value of high standards in business.

ANOTHER CASE OF SCARLET FEVER

Second One Develops in Glenwood
Which Results in Extra Precaution Being Taken.

SCHOOL NEAR FAIRVIEW OPENS

The Moffett school, near Fairview, which was closed last week because of scarlet fever in the Mont Richards home, near the school, reopened Monday, and will continue, says the Connersville News. In Glenwood the school is still closed, for there is another case of the disease in Glenwood, the new patient being a child named Gerald Anderson. A series of revival meetings, which were to have begun in the United Presbyterian church Tuesday night, have been postponed, and all public gatherings of whatsoever kind have been called off, pending the disappearance of the ailment.

At the Richardson home, near the Moffett school there are two new cases of the fever, but the patients have been within doors of late, and there is no fear of any spread of the malady from them.

STEPS ON A NAIL

AMUSEMENTS.

The Princess offers a Vitagraph comedy for the first picture tonight. It is entitled "The Lovesick Maiden of Cuddletown" and is said to be a very clever picture. "The Cowboy's Mother" is a powerful Selig western picture. Tomorrow night the famous Rube Marquard base ball pitcher will be shown.

Mlle La Belle, the mentalist will again be at the Palace theatre tonight. Mlle La Belle, as a mentalist proved all that had been said about her and the questions, asked were answered in an easy manner. The answers to many questions were really wonderful and Mlle La Belle is assured of a packed house tonight, when she appears for the last time here. The usual two pictures will be shown. "For the Sake of Her Men" is an American drama. The other is a Thanhouser, "In Blossom Time."

THE ROOT OF EVIL

BY THOMAS DIXON

Copyright, 1911, by Thomas Dixon

PROLOGUE.

This remarkable tale, in which each character is sketched from life by a master hand, goes beneath the surface of modern society and lays bare the canker at the root. Like all Mr. Dixon's work, it is a tale of American life, essentially true in the picture it draws and done with a swinging power which brings its dramatic scenes home to us. The splendid strength of the tale lies in the conflict between James Stuart and Nan, in which love and greed of wealth struggle for mastery.

CHAPTER I.

A Star Boarder.

At the end of a warm spring day in New York, James Stuart sat in the open window of his room on Washington square smiling. With a sense of deep joy he watched the trees shake the raindrops from their new emerald robes and the flying clouds that decked the western sky melt into seas of purple and gold. A huckster turned into Fourth street crying:

"Straw-berries, straw-berries!"

And the young lawyer laughed lazily. A flood of tender memories stole into his heart from the sunlit fields of the south. He had gone hunting wild strawberries with Nan Primrose on the hills at home in North Carolina the day he first knew that he loved her.

How beautiful she was that day in the plain blue cotton dress which fitted her superb young figure to perfection! How well he remembered every detail of that ramble over the red hills—he could hear now the whistle of a Bob White sitting on the fence near the spring where they lunched, calling to his mate. As Nan nestled closer on the old stile they saw the little brown bird slip from her nest in a clump of straw, lift her head and softly answer.

"Look!" Nan had whispered excitedly. "There's her nest!"

He recalled distinctly his tremor of sympathetic excitement as her warm hand drew him to the spot. With peculiar vividness he remembered the extraordinary moisture of the palm of her hand trembling with eager interest as he counted the eggs—twenty beauties. But above all memories stood out one. As he bent close above her he caught for the first time in his life the delicate perfume of her dark rich hair and felt the thrill of its mystery.

"It's their little home, isn't it, Jim?" she exclaimed.

"I hope I can build as snug a nest for you some day, Nan!" he whispered gravely.

And when she stood silent and blushing he made the final plunge. Looking straight into her dark eyes he had said:

"I love you, dear Nan!"

As she stood very still, looking down in silence, with a throb of fear and aching tenderness he dared to slip his arm around her waist and kiss the trembling lips. And then he noticed for the first time a deep red strawberry stain in the corner of her mouth. In spite of her struggles he laughingly insisted on kissing it away.

And then as a dreamy smile stole into her face she suddenly threw her arms around his neck in passionate tenderness, returning with interest every kiss he had taken.

"Straw-berries!"

The man looked up and drawled his familiar cry.

"Yes, yes!" he shouted. "Two boxes put them on the stoop—and keep the change!"

He threw the man a silver dollar, and the white teeth of the Italian signaled a smile of thanks as he bowed low, lifting his dirty cap in acknowledgment.

Nor was Nan's beauty merely a memory; it was the living presence, the source of the joy that filled his soul to overflowing today, for she had grown more beautiful than ever since her mother had moved to New York.

He had always believed that the real reason in the back of Mrs. Primrose's shallow head for this move to the north had been the determination to break his engagement and make a more brilliant marriage for Nan. And so when they left he followed.

The mother had always professed to him unbounded loyalty and admiration but he had never been deceived. He knew that Mrs. Primrose had as breathlessly followed him, but continuously by her involuntary muscles. Day and night since they had reached New York she had schemed for Nan.

She had leased a house in the fashionable neighborhood of Gramercy park, and to meet the extraordinary expense began a careful and systematic search for rich young men to whom she could let two floors.

Stuart was sure in his heart that Nan had never joined in those plans of her mother, though he had wished that she might have shown a little more strength in resisting them.

Well, he was going to win at last, and the world was full of music! He had the biggest surprise of life in store for Nan, something no true woman's heart could resist. He had succeeded after incredible difficulties in secretly building a cottage by the sea in Brooklyn. Its lawn sloped to the water's edge, and a trim boat lay nodding at the dock. Neither Mrs. Primrose nor Nan had the faintest suspicion of what he had been doing.

Tomorrow he would lead his sweetheart into this holy of holies of life, the home love had built. He could see now the smile of tenderness break over her proud face as he should hand her the keys and ask her to fix the wedding day.

His reveries were broken by a timid knock on the door and a faint call:

"Jim!"

"Come in!" he cried.

"You're not a bit glad to see me," the soft voice said. "I've been standing out there for ages."

"Forgive me, Sunshine. I must have been dreaming," Stuart pleaded, leaping from his seat and seizing her hand. "I'm awfully glad to see you!"

"Then don't call me that name again," she pouted.

"But isn't it beautiful?"

"It would be if my hair wasn't red and I didn't have freckles and was older," she protested, looking away to hide her emotion.

"But your hair isn't quite red, Harriet. It's just the color of the gold in honeycomb," he answered, gently touching her disheveled locks. "Besides, those few little freckles are becoming on your pink and white skin, and you are nearly fifteen. Well, I'll just say, 'little pal.' How's that?"

"That's better," she said, with a smile and sigh.

"Oh, Jim, I've been so dreadfully lonely since you were away! I declare, Jim, I'll die if you go away again. I just can't stand it!"

Stuart smilingly took her hand.

"Lonely, Miss Chatterbox, when that big father of yours worships the very ground you walk on!"

"Yes, I know he does, Jim, and I love him, too, but you've no idea how dreadfully still the house is when you are gone. Oh, say, I want you to be a real boarder and eat with us. Of course you will."

"That would be very nice, dear, but I'm sure your father would draw the line at a real boarder. I'd never have got this beautiful room with that big old fashioned open fireplace in your home if it hadn't happened that our fathers fought each other in the war and became friends one day on a big battlefield. It's been a second home to me."

"Be our boarder and I'll make it a real home for you, Jim," she pleaded.

"Ah—you'll be making a real home some day for one of those boys I saw at your birthday party—the tall, dark one, I think?"

"No. He doesn't measure up to my standard."

"What ails him?"

"He's a coward. My hero must be brave, for I'm timid."

"Then it will be that fat blond fellow with a jolly laugh?"

"No; he's a fibber. My prince, when he comes, must be truthful. It's so hard for me always to tell the truth."

"Then it will be that dreamy looking one of fifteen you danced with twice?"

"No, he's too frail. My hero must be strong, for I am weak. And he must have a big, noble ideal of life; for mine is very small—just a little home nest and a baby and the love of one man!"

"I'm not sure about that being such a very small ideal, girlie."

"But, oh, my! I've forgotten what I came running home for. Papa sent me to ask you to please come down to the factory right away. He wants to see you on a very important matter. It must be awfully important. He looked so worried. I don't think I ever saw him worried before."

"I'll go at once," Stuart said.

He strode rapidly across town toward the Bowery, through Fourth street, wondering what could have happened to break the accustomed good humor of the doctor.

The doctor had long since retired from the practice of medicine as a profession and only used it now as his means of ministering to the wants of his neighbors. His neighbors were a large tribe, however, scattered all the way from the cellars and dives of Water street to the shanties and goat ranges of the upper Harlem. Stuart had never met a man so full of contagious health. He was a born physician. There was healing in the touch of his big hand. Healing light streamed from his brown eyes, and his iron gray beard sparkled with it. His presence in a sickroom seemed to fill it with waves of life, and his influence over the patients to whom he ministered was little short of hypnotic.

Stuart found the doctor standing at the door of his factory, shaking hands and chatting with his employees as they emerged from the building at the close of a day's work. A plain old fashioned brick structure just off the Bowery was this factory, and across the front ran a weatherbeaten sign which had not been changed for more than fifty years: "Henry Woodman, Manufacturing Chemist."

The doctor's father had established the business fifty-two years ago, and the son, who bore his father's name, had succeeded to its management on his death, which occurred just after the return of the younger man with his victorious regiment from their last campaign with Grant before Petersburg and Appomattox.

He took Stuart's hand in his big, crushing grip and handed him a letter, which he opened and read hastily:

No. 60 Gramercy Park.

Dear Sir—I must have an answer to the proposition of the American Chemical company before noon tomorrow. After that hour the matter will be definitely closed. JNO. C. CALHOUN BIVENS.

April 2, 1898.

Still looking at the letter he asked:

"What does it mean?"

"An ultimatum from the chemical trust. I'll explain to you when you've seen something of my work tonight. The first hour I want you to put in with me at the dispensary."

Stuart's eye rested on the embossed heading of the letter, "No. 60 Gramercy park," and he slowly crushed the paper. It was the Primrose house, Nan's home. Her mother had succeeded Bivens, the new addition to high finance, she had established as her star boarder in Stuart's absence; Bivens, his schoolmate at college; Bivens, the little rascally scion of poor white trash from the south who had suddenly become a millionaire!

His blood boiled with rage. As he turned and followed the doctor he laughed with sudden fierce determination.

The dispensary was Woodman's hobby. The old fashioned drug store stood on a corner of the Bowery, and in the rear extension, which opened on the side street, he had established what he laughingly called his "life line," a free dispensary where any man needing medicine or a doctor's advice could have it without charge if unable to pay.

For two hours Stuart saw him minister with patience and skill to the friendless and the poor; for each a cheerful word and the warm grasp of his big hand with the prescription. The young lawyer watched with curious interest the quickened step with which each one left. The medicine had begun to work before the prescription was filed.

When the last applicant had gone Stuart turned to the doctor:

"And what is the proposition which the distinguished young head of the chemical trust has made you?"

"That I sell my business to them at their own valuation and come into the trust or get off the earth."

"And you wish my advice?"

"Yes."

"What figure did he name?"

"More than its cash value."

"Then you will accept, of course?"

"I would if there were not some things that can't be reckoned in terms of dollars and cents. If I take stock in the American Chemical company I am a party to their methods, an heir to their frauds."

"Yet isn't the old regime of the small manufacturer and the retailer doomed? Isn't combination the new order of modern life? Will it pay you to fight a losing battle? Bivens is not a man of broad culture, but he is a very smooth young gentleman!"

"He's a contemptible little scamp!" snapped the older man. "When I took him into my drug store six years ago he didn't have a change of clothes. Now he's a millionaire. How did he get it? He stole a formula I had used to relieve nervous headaches, mixed it in water with a little poisonous color ing matter, pushed it into the soda fountain trade, made his first half million, organized the American Chemical company and blossomed into a magnate. And now this little soda fountain pip threatens me with ruin unless I join his gang and help him rob my neighbors. It happens that I like my neighbors. My business is to heal the sick, not merely to make money. Thousands of children die at my very door every summer who could be saved by a single prescription if they could get it. That's the thought that grips me when I begin to figure the profits in this trade. I'm making a fair living. I don't want any more out of my neighbors. I've shown you some of them tonight."

"I'll never forget them," Stuart broke in.

"We used to cry over Uncle Tom's woe," the doctor continued. "And yet there are more than 5,000,000 white people in America today who are the slaves of poverty, cruel and pitiless. The black slave always had food and shelter, clothes and medicine. My business is to heal the sick—mind you! Shall I give it up to exploit them?"

"But could you not use your greater wealth for greater good if you joined the trust?" the lawyer asked. "Won't they make drugs more economically than you do and drive you to the wall at last? Isn't this new law of co-operation the law of progress—in brief, the law of God?"

"That remains to be proved. I don't believe it."

"Well, I do, and I think that if you fight it will be against the stars in their courses!"

"I'm going to fight," was the firm response. "The law is on my side, isn't it?"

"The written law, yes. But you are facing a bigger question than one of statutory law."

"So I am, boy, so I am! That's why I gave you a glimpse tonight of the world in which I live and work and dream."

"Bivens has put up to you a cold blooded business proposition!"

"Exactly. And there are things that can't be bought and sold. I am one of them!" The stalwart figure rose in simple dignity, and there was a deep tremor in his voice as he paused.

"But I'm keeping you. It's 9 o'clock and somebody's waiting—eh, boy?"

"Yes," Stuart answered apologetically. "I'm afraid I've not been of much use to you tonight."

"There is another as formidable an enemy to equality of freedom and opportunity as the capitalist—the labor organization and leader . . . Quite as monopolistic in spirit as the capitalist, and quite as apt to corrupt and ruin our industry by their monopoly."—Address before the South Carolina Society of New York, reported in the New York Tribune, March 19, 1907.

"The tendency of the modern labor union is to give to employers as little as possible for the amount they receive by way of wages . . . I need not point out how economically disastrous such a regulation of labor is. It is so unprofitable to the employer that in some trades it will presently not be worth while to attempt anything at all. Our economic supremacy may be lost because the country grows more and more full of unprofitable servants."—Address at annual commencement exercises of Princeton University, June, 1909.

In 1907, Mr. Joline, President of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railway Company, at Parsons, Kansas, in an address before the Board of Directors, in the course of his remarks said:

"Credit is the cornerstone and foundation of all business; and when you have the cruel hammer of the labor union striking you on the one side, and the reckless and unprincipled hammer of the political demagogue on the other, what becomes of your credit?"

Mr. Joline sent a copy of his address to Mr. Woodrow Wilson and Mr. Wilson answered saying:

"My dear Mr. Joline: Thank you very much for sending me your address at Parsons, Kansas, before the board of directors of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas R. R. Company. I have read it with relish and entire agreement. Would that we could do something at once dignified and effective to knock Mr. Bryan once for all into a cocked hat."

SHERMAN'S DEATH IS A MATTER OF HOURS

Physicians See Not a Single Ray of Hope.

Utica, N. Y., Oct. 30.—After a night which brought not a single ray of hope to the members of his family or to his physicians, Vice President James S. Sherman lies at his home in this city in the shadow of death. The vice president is slowly but surely losing ground and death apparently is a matter of but a short time. The end may come within twenty-four or forty-eight hours, or the sufferer may survive a week, but his case apparently is hopeless and the end, it would appear, cannot be deferred for long. Hypodermic medication has been resorted to by his physicians to ease his sufferings from the involvement of the kidneys, which have now failed to perform their functions, and as a result of the administering of these quieting medicines the vice president sleeps with very few periods of wakefulness.

Physician Offers No Hope.
Dr. F. H. Peck, the vice president's personal physician, says: "Mr. Sherman's heart action is fair, but the complications from his kidneys make his condition extremely critical because there is grave doubt if the kidneys will respond to remedial measures. Uraemia is now sapping the vitality of the vice president and I have great fear of the outcome. His condition could hardly be more desperate."

Dr. Peck is constantly at the bedside of the patient and the members of the vice president's family, Mrs. Sherman and her three sons, Sherrill, Richard and Thomas, are in the Sherman home waiting for the summons to the sick chamber which they spread but which they realize is inevitable. No visitors are received beyond relatives or intimate friends, and absolute quiet prevails in the Sherman mansion. No one is permitted in the sick room but the physicians, nurses, Mrs. Sherman and her three sons.

Head of Institution Dead.
Indianapolis, Oct. 30.—Dr. H. J. Leavitt, superintendent of the state's tuberculosis hospital at Rockville, died at the Methodist Episcopal hospital after an illness which had confined him to the hospital for a week. The board of trustees of the Rockville institution appointed Dr. W. A. Gekler, assistant superintendent of the hospital, to superintend the institution indefinitely.

MRS. GROVER CLEVELAND

Her Engagement to a College Professor is Just Announced.

MRS. CLEVELAND TO TAKE SECOND MATE

Former President's Widow to Marry Professor.

New York, Oct. 30.—The engagement of Mrs. Grover Cleveland, wife of the late president of the United States, to Professor Thomas Jex Preston, Jr., of Wells college, has just been announced by President Johnson, of Princeton university, a mutual friend of Mrs. Cleveland and Professor Preston. The date of the wedding will be announced later.

Professor Preston first met Mrs. Cleveland at Princeton where he was taking a special course in 1906. He went out into the society of the university town a good deal. Later a mutual interest attracted them to each other, for Professor Preston took the chair of archeology at Wells. Mrs. Cleveland's Alma Mater, in which she has always been greatly interested.

Ex-President Cleveland died on June 24, 1908, at his home in Princeton after a long illness.

Mrs. Cleveland is two years younger than Professor Preston, who is fifty. Professor Preston did not enter Princeton until he was 40 years old, because sickness in his youth had caused him to give up hope of completing his education. He was, however, very popular with the students, despite the difference in age.

BALKAN STATES DISPLAY FORCE

Turkish Troops Have Met a Formidable Enemy.

REVERSES ON ALL SIDES

The Bulgarians Are Continuing Their Advance, Which is Marked by a Brilliant Flanking Movement Considered by Their Friends to Be a Bit Too Daring For Safety, While Other Allies Also Are Pushing Forward.

Athens, Oct. 30.—After a three hours' fight the Greeks captured Katerrina. The Turks fled in disorder, with the Greek cavalry in pursuit. The Greeks have also captured Nalbantkoi after a sharp fight. The Turks abandoned their guns and stores.

London, Oct. 30.—Vaguely and brokenly the telegraph is telling of important and decisive operations on the part of the Bulgarians to the east of the position held by Nazim Pasha, the war minister of the Turks.

The eastern Bulgarian army has turned and is whirling south with all possible speed. There is a brilliant daring in the big flanking movement of the Bulgarians that makes some of their friends think that it is too grave a risk that the fighters of the little state are undertaking.

One thing is certain, they have the war minister with his four army corps very securely bottled up in the country between Baba Eski and Lule Burgas. He cannot long hold grimly to his position. He must soon decide to fight or surrender. On his right flank he finds the Bulgarians awaiting him in a line across the railroad into Adrianople. To the south of him he is cut off from Dimitika, where he had planned to retreat if necessary. If he turns to the east and the capital that he is fighting to defend, there are the ruins of the railroad bridge blown up by the Bulgarians to prevent his communication with Constantinople. It would seem to be the plan of the Bulgarians to throw their eastern army across the railroad and make a wedge between the Turks and their capital. Then they can force the war minister back upon the waiting bayonets of the Bulgarians now besieging Adrianople.

There is a report that Bulgarian cavalry rode across country to the Sea of Marmora to the south and there took Rodosto. This report is not confirmed. It is known that the Turks have been landing men on the shores of the Black sea near Bunahisser, but no mention has heretofore been made of Rodosto. If that town has fallen the Bulgarians must have a line across the railroad all the way from Adrianople down to the shores of the little sea and their flanking movement is practically completed.

Fighting along the Ergene river is said to be imminent. Saraj, on the Black sea, is another town where the dispatches predict an engagement. Saraj is but fifty miles from Constantinople.

Nazim Pasha, whose presence at the front is heartening the Ottoman troops, sends word that a battle is going on all along "the front."

The Serbians are getting closer to Salonika ever day and the Greeks, who have had so far easy going, are hurrying north to join them. Salonika itself is said to be unprovisioned for any siege, and most of its big guns in the fort have been sent away to the front.

There is nothing new from the Montenegrins, who are still hammering away at Scutari.

The octogenarian, Kiamil Pasha, who has already been three times grand vizier, has been appointed again to take the place of Ghazi Mouskhar Pasha. Kiamil has been always friendly to Great Britain. He will at once begin the reorganizing of the cabinet and will probably retain most of the present members.

HIDEOUS SAVAGERY

Irregular Allies of the Turks Mutilate Enemies.

Liepzig, Oct. 30.—A letter from Kirk-Killesseh, from a German who is serving with the Bulgarian Red Cross society, confirms previous reports of the ferocity of the fighting. He alleges that there have been hideous savageries by the Kurds, Tartars and Bash-Tazouks, whose treatment of the wounded included the lopping off of ears and noses, the gouging out of eyes and the ripping open of bodies in order to increase the dying agonies of the wounded. The ferocity of these tribesmen in attacking, says the writer, mainly accounts for the slaughter of Bulgarians, some of whom have been found with their throats bitten through and the jugular veins thus severed. The fury of these irregulars alone enabled the Turkish commanders to withdraw the disciplined soldiers to Bunahisser.

He Wanted "Taft's Job."

Washington, Oct. 30.—"I came to town to get Taft's job," was the explanation made by a man who described himself as Ira Otis Geiger of Oakland, Cal. He was arrested charged with insanity. Papers found on him indicated that Geiger was a member of the sign painters' union of San Francisco.

BEST $5 HE EVER SPENT

Bristol, Pa., Man Says So in This Letter.

Months of suffering and anxiety over his condition caused Mr. A. L. Kennedy of Bristol, Pa., to write this letter. He says: "Grippe and a bad cough caused me much suffering and worry for five long months, but that is all over now for I have taken Vinol and am perfectly well. I took five bottles and it was the best five dollars I ever spent."

In health one cannot realize how depressed a person may become after trying one remedy after another for such a condition as Mr. Kennedy was in, without benefit, or what a relief it is to find help and be restored to health and strength.

It is the combined action of the medicinal curative element of cods' livers without the greasy oil, aided by the bloodmaking and strength-creating properties of tonic iron, that makes Vinol so efficient in overcoming chronic coughs, colds and bronchitis at the same time building up the weakened run-down system.

We guarantee Vinol to give you perfect satisfaction. F. B. Johnson and Company, Rushville.

GAVE LESSONS TO DYNAMITERS

Practical Pointers in the Use of Clockwork.

SEATTLE SCIENTIST TESTIFIES

Prof. J. B. Wagner Tells Federal Court Jury at Indianapolis How He Innocently Assisted the Dynamiters in Their Work of Destruction by Giving to John McNamara Instructions in Construction of Infernal Machines.

Indianapolis, Oct. 30.—On the witness stand in the dynamiting cases, Professor J. B. Wagner of Seattle, told the jury how he had innocently assisted the dynamiters in their work of destruction. He said that J. J. McNamara came to him at Seattle in August, 1910, and asked instructions in causing explosions by the use of clock work. McNamara claimed that the arrangement did not always work and Wagner gave him lessons in the use of the device. A few days later, on August 31, the Lyons building in Seattle was blown up. J. H. McCormack, of Seattle, said McNamara roomed with him at the time of the explosion and left the next day. He said McNamara remained in his room all day and went out at night, and came back with a basket of groceries. He told of finding a small clock in a cavity in the hall of the room McNamara occupied after he left.

That Herbert S. Hockin, indicted secretary-treasurer of the ironworkers aided the government in securing evidence against the 45 ironworkers, was further testified to by Charles E. Freeman, public accountant. Freeman told of going to the ironworkers' headquarters in December, 1911, and meeting Hockin, who pointed out check-books and other records which he took to the federal building. The witness identified many of the check-books, records, letters and other articles that passed under his notice during his employment. He testified that about 60,000 letters were taken from the ironworkers' offices at different times and each time Hockin was present.

Released on Bail.

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 30.—Elsie Ligon, who is charged with the murder of Jessie McCune of Lima, O., in a local resort several weeks ago, was released on a $1,000 bond. It is said she choked the McCune girl to death with a towel.

Fell From Train to Death.

Valparaiso, Ind., Oct. 30.—Gustav Fritz fell from a Grand Trunk freight train here and was crushed to death. He is survived by a large family.

He Took It to Heart.

Penn. Ind., Oct. 30.—Sylvester Brindel, aged eighteen, rejected suitor of a Wabash girl, committed suicide here by swallowing poison.

live of invisible government. He has made that statement a number of times. If there is an invisible government in this fair State of Indiana, Albert J. Beveridge helped to fasten it on us while he was in the United States Senate. This is why George W. Perkins wants to be the invisible governor of Indiana.

"As I said before, Beveridge does not know me. He calls me 'Angel Sam.'" This was greeted by laughter.

"Beveridge has a cure for all ills," continued Mr. Ralston. "Durbin says he's a patent medicine man. I never use any adjectives in expressing my opinion of him. I take them from the month of his former bedfellows.

"He says that I would pick up a boss-made senator from Indiana and that he would be subservient to the interests. In the first place I will never name a senator unless some one dies. If I am called on to select a senator, I will not insult the fair womanhood of Indiana by appointing a Mormon." Mr. Ralston had to stop talking until the applause ceased.

"Beveridge never worked harder than he did in keeping Smoot in the senate. And he is a part of that invisible government, too."

Mr. Ralston said that Judge Spencer of Evansville, Democratic candidate for the supreme court in Indiana, was on the platform, and he paid a deep tribute to his integrity and ability.

When the nominee mentioned the name of Woodrow Wilson, while discussing the national ticket, he was compelled to wait until the crowd stopped clapping.

"Many people object to him because he is a teacher," said Mr. Ralston, "but I observe that there are still a lot of people in the United States who need a teacher."

He emphasized the characteristics of Wilson, and closed with the thought that any one who was good enough for William Jennings Bryan to support was good enough for him. The mention of Bryan's name was a signal for spirited applause.

HIS CONDITION CRITICAL

Utica, N. Y., October 30.—Vice-President James S. Sherman passed a fairly comfortable night, but his condition was admittedly so precarious today that the physicians would not make any prediction regarding the outcome. It is known that members of the family are prepared for the death of the Vice-President at any time, and while he may ultimately fight off his malady and recover, the speed of uraemic poisoning has disheartened the physicians, who fear that his case is hopeless. Mr. Sherman's pulse was 100 today and his respiration 25. His temperature was practical normal.
